Soviets Take 733 Towns in Pursuit Of Fleeing Nazis

Drive to Within Thirty-Seven Miles of Dnieper River Bend

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Soviet troops smashed to within thirty-seven miles of Dnieperpetrovsk, boulder dam of the Dnieper River bend, with the capture of the railway junction of Pavlograd, and swept closer to imperilled Kiev with gains on the north and east, Moscow announced tonight.

A communique reported 6,700 Germans were killed, 2,000 wounded and 500 captured in Saturday's widespread advances. The Russian columns were reported within forty-four miles of Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine, which was threatened from several directions.

The drive on Kiev reached close to the middle Dnieper River bend along the Kiev-Neshtyn railway. Northeast of Kiev the important town of Chernigov came within Soviet artillery range as Vihli, six miles to the east, was captured and twenty-six other towns overrun.

Thus the Russians were eighty miles north of Kiev and closing in on the highway linking that city and Chernigov.

Southeast of Kiev the Russian threat was more distant, but a surprise dash which swamped a Nazi rear guard resulted in a twelve-mile Red Army advance that cut the Kiev-Poltava railway at Mirogrod, 135 miles from Kiev and fifty miles northwest of Poltava.

A total of 733 towns and villages were captured, said the Moscow communique recorded by the Soviet monitor, in an unchecked advance in almost every sector of the 600-mile front toward Smolensk, Rostov, Gomel, Chernigov, Poltava, Zaporozhe, Melitopol and in the Caucasus.

The communique told of these triumphs amid a chorus of pessimistic German admissions relayed from Stockholm, Madrid and even Berlin itself.

Stockholm reports said Germany was withdrawing elite troops from the Russian front to reinforce Italy and retreating to save its men for fighting on other fronts.

Madrid suggested the Germans might abandon their Russian campaign and fall back 620 miles to the Polish frontier.

In Berlin, Capt. Ludwig Seretorius, German radio commentator, said frankly that the Germans were retreating in Russia to spare their forces and "it is not yet clear where

To Live on Raft Until Quota Made

Seven Men Stage Stunt at Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18 (AP)—Seven husky workers, picked for weather resistance, were set adrift on the Willamette River today on the cramped quarters on a life raft.

Carefully weighed in and crammed with advice from the city health officer, the men vowed to live in shipwreck conditions until Oregon climbs to its $104,000,000 War Bond quota.

Crowded onto the raft with them was a fifteen-gallon keg of water, and the same scanty supply of food concentrates on which America's sailors live when their ships are torpedoed from under them.

The raft was moored sixty-five feet from Portland's Invasion Exposition and for a $150 bond, the price of admission, visitors may watch shipwreck life at first hand. A physician will board the raft daily, to check the men's health.

The raft-sitters—six shipyard workers and one swimming instructor—began the grueling test cheerfully. Friends announced that they would work double shifts in the shipyard one for themselves and not for the marooned workers—so that the raft-sitters would lose no pay checks.

As the men boarded their raft, Oregon's Bond sales total stood at $37,856,063.

Policing Problem

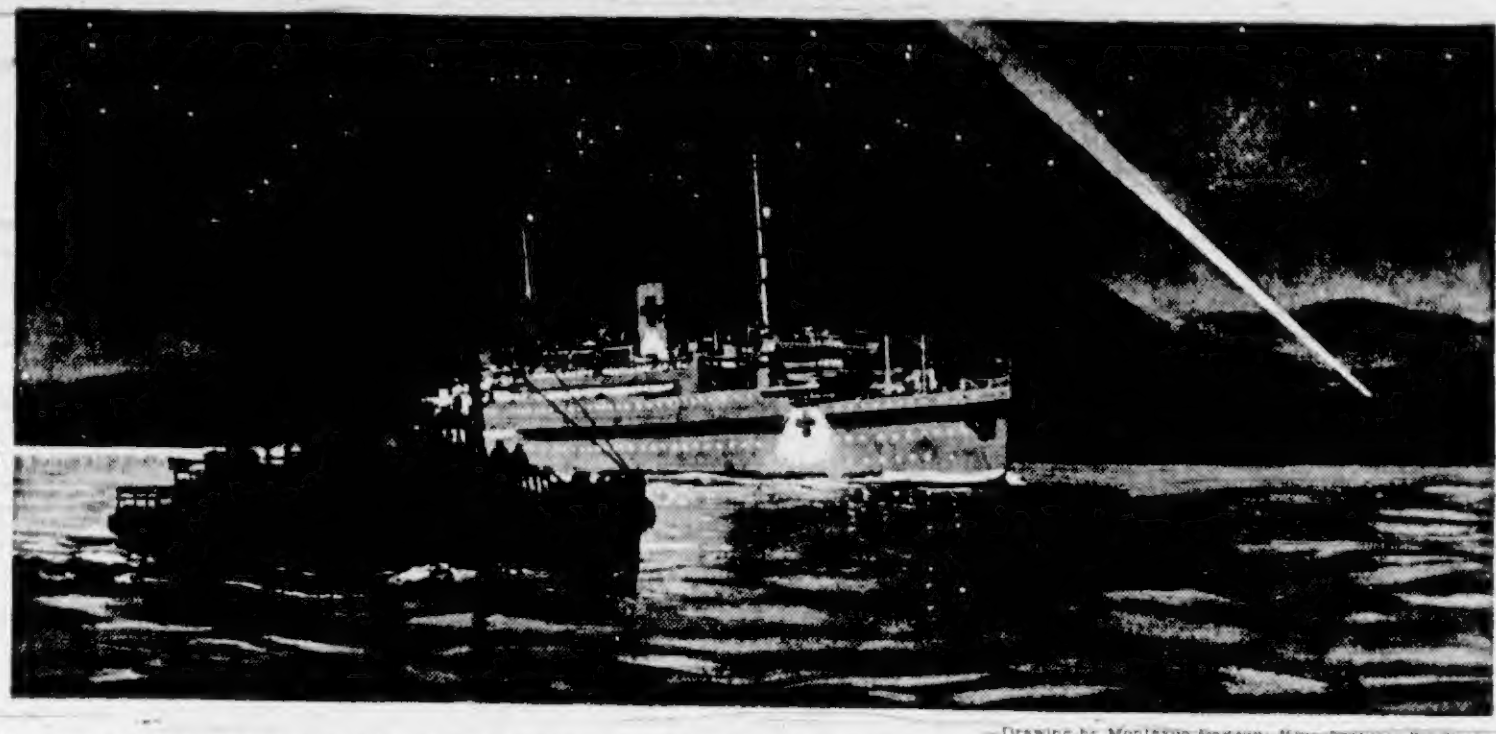

SEATTLE, Sept. 18 (AP)—Police Chief Herbert Kinney today asked the City Council to appropriate $50,000 for the training of Seattle police officers.

The chief explained that 450 new patrolmen had been put to work without adequate training and he a day. However, he explained, their services were so badly needed they could not be spared from regular work and would have to be trained overtime and paid for it.

One of the Ships That Sail the Oceans Alone

Along among ships of belligerent nations, hospital ships may sail the sea unconvoyed and unarmed; and the wounded from the A.E.F. in the Battle of Europe are being ferried quickly across the Atlantic in ships like this one, sketched as it prepared to sail from an unidentified war port to its home destination. The small craft in the foreground took the wounded men from shore to the hospital ship, a 16,000-ton former luxury liner. Under the Geneva International Convention, hospital ships must be absolutely unarmed. The hull must be white, with a broad red or green band, and with a Red Cross symbol also painted on the side.

Raid on Modane Cripples Lines

BERNE, Sept. 18 (AP)—A dispatch from Chambery, France, to The Tribune de Geneve said today that the R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. Thursday night bombing of Modane, railway junction on the Italian-French border, left the city's railroad yards a shambles.

The bombing, coupled with sabotage of the Mont Cenis railway tunnel by Italian troops, was expected to halt traffic over the important rail link with Turin for seven to eight months, the dispatch said.

Only six United States fighters and none of the big bombers participating were lost, the spokesman announced. The heavy raids are continuing, he said, but detailed reports have not yet been received.

The air base at Banate was hit Wednesday by more than 100 Dornier dive-bombers, Avenger torpedo bombers and fighters, which dropped forty tons of explosives and strafed the entire area.

General Douglas MacArthur's communique issued at Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific listed only twenty enemy planes destroyed in the Bougainville raids Wednesday, and only three American fighters lost. The spokesman at Admiral Halsey's South Pacific headquarters evidently based his announcement on later information.

MacArthur's communique reported that bombers "of all categories" meaning Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers, Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless dive-bombers "struck twice Wednesday, a screen of fighters at the Kahili and Ballale airdromes in the vicinity of Southern Bougainville. Fifty enemy planes challenged them."

Will Hit at Japan's Heart Within Year

Maj.-Gen. Johnson Makes Prediction

AN ALEUTIAN BASE, Alaska, Sept. 18 (AP)—Major-Gen. Davenport Johnson assumed command of the United States Army Eleventh Air Force today and predicted that the United States will "be hitting regularly" at the heart of Japan by air.

General Johnson, a first Great War flying comrade of the late Major-Gen. Billy Mitchell, added that when the time came the Eleventh Air Force would be ready to address the air war to Japan along the open northern route, probably from a number of points in the Aleutians.

"Any way we do it, we must have a lot of force," he said, because "it will be a long war."

At headquarters, after assuming command, the fifty-three-year-old general recalled the concern which swept the United States and particularly the Pacific Coast when the Japanese occupied Attu and Kiska.

"Now," he continued, "the shoe is on the other foot. We have driven them from the Aleutians. We are doing the threatening."

"The recapture of the islands not only inflicted heavy damage, but has forced Japan to shift strength from the South Pacific to the north to defend itself."

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 18 (AP)—Sirens screaming, two police cars sped to investigate the report a crushed and bloody body was lying in the street. They found a dummy splattered with paint.

U.S. Officers in Daring Visit To Rome Under Eyes of Nazis

WITH GEN. DWIGHT EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST, Sept. 17 (Delayed) (AP)—It was disclosed today that two high-ranking American officers made a daring visit to Rome under the eyes of the Germans only a few hours before our invasion of Salerno and returned safely after conferring with Marshal Pietro Badoglio and Italian military commanders.

The two officers went into the Italian capital wearing American army uniforms, minus caps, and spent twenty hours in the most important military discussions. Most of the time they traveled in a car, frequently passing within a few feet of German soldiers.

The exact nature of their mission was not disclosed.

They obtained vital information which has affected the whole course of events since the Italian armistice announcement.

The officers, who voluntarily carried out their dangerous assignment in the full knowledge that discovery would have meant certain execution by the Germans, were Brig-Gen. Maxwell Taylor, forty-two-year-old West Point graduate, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., and Col. William Tucker Gardner, fifty-three, a former Governor of Maine.

Thirty-Seven Japanese Craft Destroyed When 200 U.S. Planes Attack

Enemy Bases on Bougainville Island in the Solomons Blasted—Ballale Airdrome Ruined

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 19 (Sunday) (AP)—More than 200 United States planes struck Wednesday at Japanese bases on Bougainville Island in the Solomons, destroying thirty-seven enemy planes in a raid which a spokesman for Admiral William F. Halsey said today may have made the airdrome at Ballale temporarily unusable.

Only six United States fighters and none of the big bombers participating were lost, the spokesman announced. The heavy raids are continuing, he said, but detailed reports have not yet been received.

Radio Voice Purports to Be Mussolini

Calls on Italians to Join Nazis in Fight

LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP)—A voice purporting to be that of Benito Mussolini, the fallen founder of Fascism, tonight heaped denunciation upon King Vittorio Emanuele, called for the "elimination of Fascist traitors," and bade Italians take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.

In a fifteen-minute radio speech from an undisclosed place, the speaker, represented as the ex-Duce liberated by the Germans, told a story of that rescue which, he said, would "become legendary," and outlined his four-point programme for "loyal" Italians:

1. Take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.

Payment by Government of Family Allowances Possible

(Special to The Colonist) OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—Cabinet Council has under the "most serious consideration" a family allowance plan which it is hoped, according to Government spokesmen, will be a bar for inflation.

The scheme, if it is adopted, would mean that an allowance of from $6 to $9 per month would be paid for each dependent child. The move is designed to meet recommendations in the majority report of the National War Labor Board, which recently conducted an exhaustive inquiry into wage conditions and labor relations in Canada.

Mr. Justice C. P. McTear, board chairman, and Leon Lalonde, board member, have joined together in a majority report, recommending wage increase rates for workers of lower incomes. Beyond meeting the demands of those in the sub-normal wage categories, the majority report does not go much further, except a recognition that in meritorious cases consideration should be given. The independent report of J. L. Cohen, since dismissed as labor's representative on the board, recommends a wage increase "across the board" irrespective of high or low income brackets. It is understood. Findings of the board are expected to be made public in ten days.

The family allowance plan is uppermost in Cabinet discussions now as a means of increasing income.

Victory at Salerno Opens a New Phase Of Fight for Italy

Bridgehead Now Full Battlefront—Naval Units Seize Three Islands

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 18 (AP)—Allied naval units have opened a new phase in the battle for Italy by seizing three more islands commanding the immediate sea approaches to the great port of Naples, headquarters announced today as Allied ground troops emerged victorious in the bloody fighting at Salerno.

A special communique disclosed the occupation of Ischia, sixteen miles southwest of Naples, only a few hours after the regular war bulletin from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced the seizure of two other islands off the northern spur of the Bay of Naples.

Ischia was taken Thursday, one day after the occupation of Ponza, sixty-five miles west of Naples, and of Procida, twelve miles southwest of Naples and only two miles from the northern land arm of the bay.

Ischia, largest of the four square miles and is only seven miles from the nearest mainland coast.

Berlin broadcast an announcement that the Germans had occupied the island of Elba, Napoleon's first home in exile, thirty-six miles east of Corsica and eight miles from the Italian coast. Seven thousand Italian troops were said by the Nazis to have surrendered there.

Allied armies emerged victors in the battle of Salerno—first great engagement with Hitler's legions for the command of Europe—because of an abundance of grim courage on

Chaos and Misery in Italy Now

Food Short, Savage Fights With Nazis

BERNE, September 17 (AP)—The German secret police went into full-speed operation in Italy today with an order imposing death on all Italians caught hiding arms or molesting or stealing military equipment.

The death decree was published throughout occupied Italy—the best indication thus far of the underground resistance the Nazis expect to encounter there and the ruthlessness with which they are determined to fight it.

The Nazi pattern was the same as that first seen in Poland and later used with clocklike precision in Norway, the Low Countries, France and Russia—conscription of labor, death to saboteurs and a command to the country's army to appear for surrender or induction.

In Italy, however, the Germans have stepped up the pattern, for here they are acting against a former ally, and the bitterness shown by the Nazi press toward Premier Badoglio's capitulation has not been softened by the release of

Chiang Opens New Session

CHUNGKING, Sept. 18 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, making his first public appearance as President of China, called today for the co-operation of his country and her Allies in an "all-front" offensive and declared that the surrender of the Italian fleet "determines Japan's ultimate doom" through a shift of naval forces.

The generalissimo opened the fourth plenary session of the People's Political Council and pledged the Chinese to fight until Manchuria is recovered.

Reiterating a statement of 1941, Chiang said: "Our sacred resistance will not end until the lost territory in our northeast is fully recovered and the liberty of our fellow-countrymen there regained."

Allied Planes Smash Scores Of Enemy Aircraft in Italy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 18 (AP)—Every indication that the Germans mean to defend each foot of ground in Italy could be seen in the tactics of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, but their tremendous weakness in the air makes their defeat inevitable.

Four-engine Flying Fortresses and medium Mitchells and Mustangs struck again at German air power yesterday, destroying scores of enemy fighters and bombers on the ground in surprise attacks on airfields near Rome, but encountered no opposition in the air.

It was disclosed officially that American P-40 Warhawks and R.A.F. Spitfires now are operating from mainland bases established after the landing of the Fifth Army at Salerno.

Flying Fortresses hit two airdromes at Campino and dumped hundreds of bombs on a group of Focke-Wulf long-range bombers. Twin-engine Mitchells and Mustangs, attacking the Pratella di Mare field, caused heavy destruction among more than 100 grounded aircraft.

Seattle Liquor Stores Cleaned

SEATTLE, Sept. 18 (AP)—Crowds that overflowed into the streets and the sidewalks outside jammed around Seattle liquor stores today as they began selling whisky at noon.

At the Columbia district store, estimated by liquor store officials to have had the heaviest run, more than 500 were unable to get into the place after it opened.

So heavy was the selling that a number of the stores were cleared of whisky stocks within two hours. Most stores split stock into three batches—to go on sale at opening, in mid-afternoon and in the evening—to give workers on all shifts a chance to purchase.

GERMANS' LINE FOR "LAST STAND" IN ITALY—London Reuters Map. King Features Syndicate. This map of the line of the River Po, which commentators have been guessing that Nazis will retire to make their most determined stand in Italy, directs attention to one fact not generally understood. That is the proximity of the most important industrial region of Italy, that around Milan, to the line. A retirement to the River Po line would set this region up as a close range target for Allied aircraft—something German generals will not want to do as long as they can maintain a defence on shorter defence lines in the "boot" of Italy.

Victoria Yard Launches New Frigate for Canadian Navy

H.M.C.S. Orkney, 300-foot frigate of a new design claimed to produce the most effective anti-submarine weapon yet devised, took to the water from Yarrow's No. 2 yard on Saturday at 6 p.m. following an impressive ceremony of interest from coast to coast.

The ship was one of twelve launched in ports from Halifax to Victoria on Saturday.

The long, narrow, Victoria-built vessel was christened by Mrs. J. Sparrow, who came to Victoria directly from Yorkton, Sask., to sponsor the craft. She has a son in the Royal Canadian Navy. Gay with naval pennants, and painted with a dark red, undercoat, the ship slid gracefully down the ways to the accompaniment of the R.C.N. band's playing of "Rule Britannia" and "Hearts of Oak," and the cheers and applause of invited guests and workmen of the yard.

NAVAL CHAPLAINS GIVE BLESSING

Clergymen who blessed the ship and the 118 officers and men to be chosen to sail in her were Rev. John Furlong, senior Protestant chaplain of the Pacific Coast; Rev. G. L. Gillard, assistant senior Protestant chaplain, Pacific Coast; and Rev. F. A. Wood, senior Roman Catholic chaplain, Pacific Coast. Lt. Gillard led the singing of a hymn, and Lt. Furlong said prayers, followed by the National Anthem.

In a brief address prior to the launching, Norman Yarrow, mentioned the pride his firm and employees took in building ships for the navy, and the fact that H.M.C.S. Orkney was the eleventh frigate to be launched at the yard since last November.

"It has been announced that there is to be some curtailment in the production of cargo vessels, but there is to be no reduction in the production of naval craft such as the ships we are building," he said. "In fact, we are being continually urged to increase our production."

SATISFIED WITH CRAFT PRODUCED

He read a congratulatory telegram from the director-general of naval shipbuilding, adding that he is satisfied that there is "no one on this continent that is turning out finer fighting craft than we are."

He expressed the hope that the Government will continue naval shipbuilding to maintain the Canadian Navy and at the same time retain in employment those who are now skilled in the work.

Guests invited to the launching were Hon. John Hart and Mrs. Hart; R. W. Mayhew, M.P., and Mrs. Mayhew; Mayor and Mrs. Andrew McGavin; Reeves and Mrs. Alex Lockley; Capt. Massey Golden, D.S.C., R.C.N.; Engineer Capt. A. D. M. Curry, R.C.N.; Mrs. E. B. Page, Yorkton, and several former residents of Yorkton now living in Victoria.

Another group invited included Mr. Justice J. D. Hyndman, Ottawa, chairman of the War Contracts Disposition Board, and members of his party.

Chaos in Italy

Benito Mussolini, whose whereabouts still are a mystery. There is yet no strong indication of sufficient sabotage within Italy to be of great assistance to the Allies.

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
LONDON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Disorder and misery on a scale not seen since the fall of France were reported in Italy tonight as the Germans sought to kick their beaten allies back to an unwelcome partnership with them.

But the Italians were fighting back—in increasing numbers it appeared. They were reported ripping up German communications between Northern and Central Italy at a time when the German command most urgently needed them. At some points in the North they were said to be standing against the Nazis and shooting it out.

A variety of accounts from neutral and Allied sources pictured this as part of the chaos in Italy.

1. No food received for days in Rome. No normal activity resumed in the city for more than a week after it had gone under Nazi "protection." The Germans are being compelled to bring in still more troops.

2. The Vatican ringed about and virtually cut off from the outer world by Nazi troops. Pope Pius XII was reported in neutral Stockholm dispatches to have strongly protested his status as a virtual prisoner as well as the treatment of the people in general. The same dispatches reported that the holy father had refused twice to see the German commander, Field Marshal Gen. Albert von Kesselring, insisting that the Germans must first evacuate Rome and thus make good Hitler's promise that his soldiers would remain outside the city.

The German news agency, D.N.B., claimed, however, that Luigi Cardinal Magliana, secretary of state, had received the German ambassador.

3. Savage fighting between German and Italian troops along the Brenner Pass railroad line, the means of entry and exit for the Nazis, and at Turin and other parts of the upper peninsula.

4. All Northern Italy short of food, with the Germans confiscating what is at hand and making no effort to provide for civilians, a job which in any case would be difficult because of the increasing strain on German communications and their destruction by Italian patriots.

5. Leaflets are being distributed to the Italians urging them to sabotage and fight the Nazis.

The next big German stand certainly will be before Naples. The capture of Naples would give the Allies one of the best and largest seaports in Italy through which thousands of tons of supplies could be funneled.

Dash to Rome

The Italians had planned a leisurely schedule for the Americans, but the latter insisted upon seeing the Italian generals immediately. The Americans also insisted upon seeing Marshal Badoglio at once.

The Italians first said it would be impossible to disturb the old marshal after midnight, since he was already asleep several hours, but they finally yielded to the Americans' insistence and telephoned Badoglio's aide and he made an appointment.

THROUGH ROME'S BLACK STREETS

With lights dimmed, the car crept through Rome's blacked-out streets for a quarter-mile, when suddenly a sentry challenged. The car halted and the sentry walked over, flashed a light into the back seat of the car. The Italian general, feigning casualness which certainly he did not feel, produced credentials which satisfied the sentry and he allowed them to proceed.

This was repeated seven or eight times en route to Badoglio's home. Taylor and Gardiner were too concerned about reaching Badoglio to be worried over their personal safety. The Italians, however, were highly nervous, fearing discovery would mean they would be executed as well as the Americans, who had no illusions that their uniforms could save them from death if they fell into hostile hands.

Badoglio, in civilian clothes, received the Americans in the study of his ornate villa. The marshal, whose personal situation was highly dangerous because of the armistice plans, looked very tired and old.

A brief and pointed conversation followed, at the end of which Badoglio took Taylor's hand and, with tears in his eyes, said:

"I swear on my honor and my fifty-five years as a soldier my loyalty to the Allied cause."

Taylor and Gardiner were driven back to their quarters again but were stopped frequently en route by Italian sentries. Taylor then hurriedly wrote a message to send by previously arranged radio communications. He and Gardiner then settled down to await further instructions from Gen. Eisenhower.

The instructions were to fly back to Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters. They made the return trip in a Savoia Marchetti bomber.

HANDMADE WITH CARE!

... You'll get more wear!

It's not only a question of economy to make your clothes last as long as possible—it's a matter of necessity, just as it is with your car, tires, electrical equipment and other commodities. It is also our patriotic duty as good citizens to make everything we own last longer—and that definitely includes clothing.

As makers of good clothes for men and women for over three decades, whose main task today is the production of uniforms for our fighting men, we offer these reminders of how to make your clothes give you longer and better service:

1. REST YOUR CLOTHES
Just as you need relaxation, so do your clothes. Alternate your suits. Give the wool a chance to spring back into shape.
2. BRUSH YOUR SUITS DAILY
You brush your teeth every day—do as much for your clothes. They'll appreciate it.
3. LET THEM BREATHE
Leave them breathing space in your closet, so they won't crush. Use hangers that conform to the line of the coat. Don't throw your clothes around the room—hang them up where they belong.
4. CLEAN WHEN NECESSARY
Choose a reliable cleaner who knows his business.
5. GUARD AGAINST MOTHS
A ounce of moth prevention is worth many dollars in the longer life of your clothes.
6. CHECK FOR RIPS AND TEARS
"A stitch in time" may save greater damage on a whole suit.

P.S. Naturally, your clothes must be good clothes to begin with—the kind of quality clothing Tip Top Tailors has been famous for since 1910.

Dealers Unable To Supply Wood

Greater Victoria Fuel Dealers' Association is unable to supply International Pulp & Paper Company with large quantities of hemlock, larch, balsam and spruce for a chipping mill to be erected on the Inner Harbor, according to a letter received at the City Hall on Saturday morning.

"We are unable to do this on account of the shortage of wood for household requirements, and wish to know the attitude of the City Council toward needs of the company," the letter stated.

Mayor Andrew McGavin and aldermen will consider the question at a meeting on Monday afternoon. Attention will also be devoted to a communication from Civic Employees' Protective Association asking for a meeting to discuss the cost-of-living bonus, clarify the status of employees hired during the war, review wage scales and deal with certain concessions for waterworks employees.

LONDON, Sept. 18 (CP)—The German news agency, D.N.B., reported from Sofia today that Prime Minister Dobri Bozilov had announced the decision of the new Bulgarian Cabinet to continue collaboration with Germany. The broadcast was heard by The Associated Press.

Saanich Leads Construction

Greater Victoria building inspectors issued forty-one permits valued at $50,053 during the past week. Saanich led with twenty-four permits for $45,810; the city granted fifteen permits representing $3,443, and Esquimalt issued two permits valued at $5,000. No permits were taken out in Oak Bay.

Saanich permits included a $35,000 addition to the Vancouver Island Power Company sub-station at Brentwood, and a number of alterations and additions to dwellings.

In the city, G. B. Murdie, Ltd., took out a $1,500 permit for machine shop extensions at 51 Harbor Road. Williams, Terrie & Williams, Ltd., secured a $2,000 permit to repair fire damage in a store at 1306 Douglas Street.

Esquimalt issued a $3,000 permit to Alexander Bain for a four-room dwelling at 941 Woodlawn Street. H. Brown took out a $2,000 permit for a four-room house at 642 Granville Avenue.

New Index Will Co-Ordinate City Social Services

In order to eliminate waste which might result if social service activities in Victoria were not co-ordinated, a Social Service Index has been established at Welfare House, Pandora Avenue.

With the Community Chest budget set at $45,000 in the approaching campaign, organizations which derive financial support from it can not afford duplication of service and unnecessary overhead.

It is a highly specialized service in the welfare field. Listed in the index are all cases which have required assistance of the different agencies over a lengthy period. The information is strictly confidential and is available only to member agencies and those non-associated groups which contribute to its upkeep.

Nothing is listed on actual case histories. That material is assembled and maintained as the confidential information of the agency concerned.

ASSISTS INDIVIDUAL SOCIAL WORKERS

However, the social worker can, through the assisting agency, determine whether or not her specific services are required or if they would merely duplicate the activity carried on by some other group.

The index helps to avoid multiple investigations, with the embarrassment they might bring the client. The individual requiring aid need not go through repeated questionings before assistance can be given him or her. In those cases where such questioning entails major psychological distress, the client undergoes the ordeal but once.

Compiled and kept up-to-date by one full time worker, assisted by a part-time employee, it constitutes a nerve centre for all the Community Chest agencies and is one of the most important units within that organization for the increase of efficiency and the elimination of waste.

Radio Stars Will Perform at Shrine On Friday, Sept. 24

Once again Canada's "ace" guitarist, Ray Norris, and his all-star group will make a personal appearance at the Shrine Auditorium, Friday, September 24. And, as in August, Ray Norris' "Disciplinarians" will play a full programme of dance music as well as entertain with novelty songs and unique musical arrangements. Ray Norris' "Serenade in Swing," heard regularly on Monday nights at 9:45 o'clock on CBR, is a fair example of what to expect Friday, September 24.

Appearing with Ray Norris will be Victoria's own Ches Gutter, a "home town" who has really made a name for himself in Vancouver. Clarinetist Phil Simmons, Canada's own Benny Goodman, will again be on hand to entertain, as will Drummer Boy Louie Nelson, "soul singer," Bud Henderson, pianist, and Bud Hamer, Vancouver's top-notch trumpeter. These radio stars will return to the bandstand of the Shrine Auditorium, Friday, September 24.

According to Culbertson

It is only logical to listen to the opponents' bidding and to draw certain conclusions therefrom, but it is fatal to "believe" that bidding implicitly. For example:

South dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
K 9 8 3
A 5
J 7 5 3

WEST
Q J 7
Q 4
A 10 8 5
A 8 6 5

EAST
10 4 2
10 9 7 6 3
K 6 5

SOUTH
A 8 3
K J 8 2
K Q J 3

The bidding:
South West North East
1 A Pass 2 A Pass
2 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass

After the hand was over, South hastened to point out that his remarkable spade bid had been the result of "a club getting mixed in with the spade suit." Whether this was true, or whether the bid was an out and out psychic, is beside the point except to explain the dangerous final contract.

Sandham Graves Appointed Editor

The directors of The Daily Colonist announced yesterday that Sandham Graves would succeed to the editorship, left vacant through the passing of the late Mr. Charles Swayne, who had held the position for twenty-seven years. The appointment will take effect immediately, the directors said.

Born at Dublin, Ireland, forty-nine years ago, Mr. Graves joined the editorial staff of The Daily Colonist in 1919, after service as a telegraphist in the First Canadian Division, C.E.F., and as a fighter-pilot in the Royal Flying Corps in France and Egypt. A member of the Institute of Journalists and the Legislative Press Gallery of British Columbia, Mr. Graves had been assistant editor of The Daily Colonist under the late Mr. Swayne.

Power Firm Will Meet Premier on Public Ownership

Appointment of a committee of four by the British Columbia Power Corporation to discuss acquisition of the company's utility services by municipalities, arrangement for a meeting of this committee with Premier John Hart in Toronto before the end of this month, and a preliminary statement of attitude by the power company were the three major points in an announcement made today by Premier Hart.

The announcement followed a conference held by the Premier with W. G. Murrin, president, and A. T. Goward, vice-president of the British Columbia Power Corporation. The power company officials sought an interview with the Premier, and at the conference Mr. Murrin officially delivered a letter in reply to a communication from the Premier directed to the power company in which he pointed out that the municipalities had indicated their desire to consider the question of acquiring the electric power, light and transit services operated by the British Columbia Power Corporation within their boundaries.

In the official reply to the Premier's letter, the directors of the company advised that while they would prefer to continue to operate and develop the services now maintained by the company, the directors, however, had appointed a committee of four, three of whom represent the Canadian interests and one representing British interests, to discuss the proposals.

Mr. Murrin advised the Premier that he would be glad to convey to the committee any further suggestion. After some discussion, it was agreed that the Premier should meet this committee in Toronto on or about September 30.

It will be remembered at the last session of the Legislature, the Premier enunciated the Government's policy regarding municipal ownership of public utilities, and he stated at that time that the Government would be glad to assist the municipalities in bringing this about.

THE ARMOR OF LIGHT

The world has fought many things in its day. Folly, pride and ignorance, the black arts of human neglect and bitterness, superstition and its barren seeds have been some of them. Belief, however, has humanity had to fight such stark and unrelieved cruelty and the abuse of power as are masquerading today in the guise of a new order for the relief of mankind; a gospel of darkness, ruin and despair, which, if it succeeded, would put out the lights of the world for a millennium. Happily, it is not succeeding.

It is a test of the individual worth of human beings, and proof of their kinship with a true order of Light, and not of darkness, that every instinct, feeling and response within them revolts against cruelty in any form. A reign of cruelty, a reign of terror has so outraged the human family that everywhere it has taken arms against it in the field—Out of holocaust, men will extract mercy; and from hatred, love. Even while the battle is on these things are being wrought out in men's minds. Tyranny itself must die, and from its corpse must arise a fairer and a juster world.

It is significant that, at the height of the mortal storm, humanity is placing higher and more genuine values on simple truths such as the world has long known. Kindness, forbearance, the will to serve others in place of self, this is the coinage to which a tortured humanity turns in its night of terror. Once again truth has vestments, and honor meaning. Once more men pledge and keep their given word, even to the death. Deep and sure under all is the knowledge of a cause higher than man's will, a faith that, with the help of Providence, humanity will cast off the works of darkness and put on the armor of Light. Like a beacon through the centuries that Light has been growing stronger, for all the surrounding gloom. It is the Light of the Spirit that was given to man to distinguish him from the beasts.

ELECTION HORIZONS?

National political parties do not hold policy-making conferences, which are costly affairs, for the doubtful enjoyment of a reunion in some Eastern city in wartime. The gathering of Liberal members and supporters at Ottawa, timed to begin towards the end of this week, is an indication that something has arisen upon which Liberal leaders wish to confer with the party as a whole. That something might be, as it has been frequently suggested in Liberal ranks, a general Federal election; or it might not.

Whatever else might be argued in its favor, the Mackenzie King Administration has two unexpired years to go in office before a general election would be necessary through any demand of parliamentary procedure. The Administration holds an overwhelming balance of power in Parliament; and cannot therefore plead lack of support in the House of Commons, or indeed in the Senate. To anticipate an election by a year or more would require some very special reasons. Leaving these considerations aside, the war quite clearly is approaching its climax. The division, turmoil and contention of a Federal general election would not be precisely the best backing that Canada could give to those of her men and women who are fighting for her overseas, unless, as stated, some very strong reasons are present. Political expediency would not be a valid reason, nor could it justify the expense and unrest of a Federal general election at a crucial moment in the war.

The Liberal conference, however, may be innocent of all such aims. The country will be watching with some interest to find out. For what Canada needs at the moment is to work hard at its obligations in the war, whose main issue is in balance.

STEADY PULL NEEDED

Quite clearly, the United Nations are at a major opportunity in the war, the first in four long years of embittered conflict. For two years the aggressors appeared to be winning, hands down. In the third year, 1942, the free world pulled itself together, and commenced slowly to take up the strain. In every theatre the enemy was stopped, and in not a few he was driven back substantially. This year the continent of Africa was freed, the Mediterranean Sea was opened, the Germans were driven from all save their crumbling foothold in Russia, the seas and skies were cleared over a vast area, Italy was knocked out of the Axis, and the Japanese were corralled on both northern and southern flanks. Freedom was fighting back in unison.

Naturally enough, such a tremendous reversal in fortunes has had its effect on the free peoples of the world. It has given new life and hope to countless millions in overrun lands. It has led to a jubilant, optimistic spirit, which, however, must be harnessed to some useful task if it is to do any good in the war, or to contribute in any wise to the actual liberation of the world. That task still lies in the future, when the result of improved manpower, equipment, communications and all other factors can be brought solidly to bear upon the enemy, to drive him out. It will be for the experts to say when, where and how this preponderance of human force is to be applied.

Freedom's opportunity, and it is one shared by all the United Nations alike, is to shorten the conflict by contributing its longest, strongest and steadiest pull now, when it will have the greatest effect. Our men on the battle fronts are doing, and will do, all that could possibly be required of them. Already they have taken the measure of an enemy they know they can conquer. The real weight of this opportunity, then, rests at home, where ordinary, everyday people have each a task to do, a valid and worthwhile contribution to make now at an epic moment in human history.

Put in other terms, that means that everyone

In Canada has a fresh, and a greater, responsibility in this nation's response to the war. It is a time to lay aside differences, to coalesce and merge in a united effort to produce the maximum result of which we jointly are capable. Both the duration of the conflict, and the toll of direct human suffering in it can be reduced by honest, continued and sincere work now on the home front. Literally, human lives are at stake. We can conserve those lives and insure an earlier victory if each one in his place gives now of his best.

What we should push from our minds, with all of the self-control we can muster, is the insidious thought that victory has already been won, and that the United Nations have nothing to do save coast from here. That is simply not true. It is against all of the facts and circumstances that can be adduced and weighed. On the contrary, probably the hardest battles of the war have yet to come, against a foe that is being systematically cornered like a rat. Cornered rats fight back. What we are entitled to comfort ourselves with is the fact that aggression cannot now win. Three, even two, years ago that could not have been written. Today it can. Let us, then, seize the opportunity—and shorten the war. This is the time to work, act and fight!

THE COMMUNITY CHEST

In a few days' time the Community Chest of Greater Victoria will be launching its annual drive for public subscription to those organized charities of which it stands in charge. The appeal, coming before the Fifth Victory Loan and after successive special and regular campaigns to raise funds, falls somewhat unfortunately in season, but that cannot be helped. The need is genuine, and every effort will have to be made to see that services of long-continued value to this community, and to everyone in it, are maintained. Rightly considered, the Community Chest ought to be regarded as a year-round community undertaking, which in fact it is. Registered charitable societies, each specializing in its own line of welfare, have to spread both their intake and their outlay over twelve months in the year. The service they give is known and budgeted. Audited reports are on hand for every phase of it, from month to month and from year to year.

These services, moreover, dovetail and do not overlap. The dollars collected by public subscription for a set purpose are spent to that end, and not for any other. It is a sane and ordered way of doing a very necessary business, the responsibility of easing some of the real and insistent pressures which fall on humanity in these critical and emergent times. The year-end reports indicate that these are high-value dollars, perhaps the best bargain this community can get for its money in the broad field of human welfare.

Some years ago Victoria adopted the Community Chest plan, as being the most workmanlike scheme whereby a fixed set of community tasks and responsibilities could be both carried out and shared. A highly trained personnel has been assembled through the years, and from its physical standpoint the plan is working well. The Community Chest, however, must be filled, or the whole device falls to the ground. That is a point to remember. This is the obligation of the community and of everyone in it, each according to his means.

SONG OF THE SEA

The sea has many voices, from the thunder of the raging ocean to the whisper, hardly more than a sigh, which it breathes over the sands at the head of a long and sheltered inlet. It knows the full-throated tones of nature's grandest organ, swelling in triumphant chords which beat like heavy gunfire on the eardrums. It knows the little stops that nature pulls with cunning artifice, to nudge a sleeping eel but not awaken it. In all its many voices the sea has ever held a deep and satisfying comfort for mankind.

It is the little voices of the sea that draw people to the beaches, to hear the elfin symphonies that play upon a quiet strand. There is the gentle lapping of the inch-high ripples where expended waves caress a slowly shelving shore. There is the tinkling of small pebbles; where they jostle one another at the making of the tide. There is the quiet surge which stirs the fringed seaweed, growing on the tidal rocks. Many and soft are the voices of a placid sea upon a quiet shore.

Stronger speaks the sea when wind and tide are making; when a cross chop breaks the surface, and sends a line of white-foam, cavalry charging with their tossing feathered head-pieces. Stronger again it speaks when ships put out of harbor, beyond the shelter of the land; where forefoot beats with rhythmic pulse, and rigging starts its drumming. Louder, clearer rings the water when, seas abeam, the waves rear up, draw back, make on and charge with restless fury against a straining hull and creaking timber. Strongest of all in a storm, when awful voices boom, and lightning rives the heavens with its searing, livid fingers. Yet in all its moods, the sea has been man's ancient friend and comforter, the bringer of glad tidings from afar.

OUR COMMON CLAY

I remember a morgue in Vancouver Where, each in the pale silence clad, They slept in one chamber together The good, the indifferent and bad.

And one was found dead in the forest, Another was dragged from the sea, Self- slain by a spirit in torture, Now painless and tranquil and free.

And one had breathed death like an incense In an aura of saintly flame, And one had gasped out her hot anguish In a hoarse cry of pain and shame.

Yet with all her faults she was human, Her failings had died with her breath, And the face of the angel in woman Returned with the angel of death.

And the face of the merciless miser Was meek as the face of a child, While the face of the hard and inhuman Was softened and gentle and mild.

Now gone were all life-long pretences, No more the mask of the hypocrite's face, There was peace on the face of the sinner And peace on the face of the saint.

They lay there as sisters and brothers, Alike from the light of the day, And the soul of inaudible concord Sang from their common clay.

A sign that in ages eternal In spaces with love ever rife They will climb to the summits supernal, The heights of eternal life.

710 Rupert Street, Victoria, B.C.

It is quite deplorable to see how many rational creatures, or at least who are thought so, mistake suffering for sanctity, and think a sad face and a pious habit of mind profound offerings to that deity whose works are in light and truth and harmony and loveliness—Lady Morgan.

Little Coves

Continued

Here and there along the many narrow salt water highways and ways of the British Columbia coast are to be found dwellings set in the centre of tree-cleared patches of ground, their presence indicating, on somebody's part, either a desire for seclusion or a great ambition to do a little pioneering. Some of the dwellings and their surroundings, especially where the water highways are more or less common to travel, have not quite the solitary appearance others located on less frequent and more remote byways exhibit. All represent homes, however, and house grand folk as a general rule.

Particularly appealing to a small boat wayfarer, in days when the writer was wont to wander by strait and channel among the clusters of islands lying between the Island of Vancouver and the Mainland shores of the province, were the little frame- and log houses standing bravely in their small clearings at the head of sheltered coves, with the land in front sloping gradually down to small rubble-covered beaches, and looking seaward to the evergreen wall of the challenging forest.

The small cove was always a first consideration of the pioneer selecting a homestead, for it was necessary to have a safe haven in which the boat could be moored or beached and be available when the desire to call on the next-door neighbor, maybe miles away, became urgent, as it occasionally happened. A boat was the Coast pioneer's lifeline, too. Jobs had to be rustled by water, at logging camp and cannery, if the trifle of clothing required now and then as well as certain foodstuffs wanted to augment the garden produce and what the woods and water supplied in the way of birds, venison and fish, were to be obtained. So the little cove was the pioneer's first choice.

ON CHANNEL LEADING TO NORTHERN B.C.

One of such little coves in particular I have in mind. It was situated on the edge of the narrow channel leading to the north. This channel was not really isolated, being regularly used at certain seasons of the year and especially when the fishing boats were bound to or returning from Northern British Columbia waters. When a settler pre-empted the land adjacent to the cove it became a stopover point for boat skippers willing to spell themselves for a few hours after a long day of navigating. They were welcome there, and made to feel the welcome was genuine. And so was I when I towed in there one evening just before dusk and made preparations to make camp for the night on the beach.

If the ageing man and wife I met there had ever been imbued with the desire to get a ten-day inspection trip, I would have been the last to suggest that Japan is still to come but added that "it may seem significant that our navy hasn't seen a Japanese aircraft carrier in the last four months."

"Apparently they don't like to come out where it is wet," he told a press conference.

Knox said he could not imagine a happier day than this in the light of Italian developments.

"It is a joy to see how thoroughly we (British and Americans) have learned to work together," he said.

The secretary arrived in Britain by plane, accompanied by Captain Roland P. Lovell, chief of the Navy Public Relations Department.

Observation Car

By G.E.

From an editorial in See: "Enemy propagandists abetted by unthinking humanitarians want us to believe that the kindly, beer-drinking, music-loving Teuton of cartoon and history has nothing in common with Hitler and the Nazis. For the Germans to have voted Nazism into power without believing in it wholeheartedly is of course absurd. Nazism is the modern expression of age-old German resentment against the world, which has wrought injustice, death and bloodshed for 800 years. Blameworthy as the Germans are, it is the Prussian hotel in 1870, with Prussianism, German culture, the malevolent virus of German misbehavior was spawned before recorded history, and goes back to Aleric and Attila. There is no cure for it. Churchill summed it up recently when he said, 'The German is either at your feet or at your throat.' If the Germans cannot be kept permanently at our feet, they must be eliminated. Our enemy is the German, not particularly the Nazi. Let us not forget it when victory is won."

Knox in England

LONDON, Sept. 18 (CP)—Frank Knox, United States Navy Secretary, arrived in England for a ten-day inspection trip, warned that the main battle against Japan is still to come but added that "it may seem significant that our navy hasn't seen a Japanese aircraft carrier in the last four months."

"Apparently they don't like to come out where it is wet," he told a press conference.

Knox said he could not imagine a happier day than this in the light of Italian developments.

"It is a joy to see how thoroughly we (British and Americans) have learned to work together," he said.

The secretary arrived in Britain by plane, accompanied by Captain Roland P. Lovell, chief of the Navy Public Relations Department.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

From The Daily Colonist of September 18, 1868.

Made Record Trip—H.M.S. Melampus made the run up from Calico to Victoria direct over 3,000 miles in twenty-three days, no stoppages being made for coaling. This is one of the records of the navy. The voyage was one of the most unpleasant of the officers ever experienced, heavy storms and gales being met with, while there was almost constant rain. The Melampus is now alongside the naval yard dock, having extensive repairs made before going to Vancouver to recommission.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

From The Daily Colonist of September 18, 1868.

Anti-Confederation Propaganda—Anti-Confederation documents in effect repudiating the action of the Yale Convention and the city delegates thereto, have been circulated during the past week for signature. It is proposed to hand them to the Hon. the Governor; they are signed by a number of our citizens, purporting to represent the feelings of the various sections of the community, both of our British and foreign element.

By G.E.

From an editorial in See: "Enemy propagandists abetted by unthinking humanitarians want us to believe that the kindly, beer-drinking, music-loving Teuton of cartoon and history has nothing in common with Hitler and the Nazis. For the Germans to have voted Nazism into power without believing in it wholeheartedly is of course absurd. Nazism is the modern expression of age-old German resentment against the world, which has wrought injustice, death and bloodshed for 800 years. Blameworthy as the Germans are, it is the Prussian hotel in 1870, with Prussianism, German culture, the malevolent virus of German misbehavior was spawned before recorded history, and goes back to Aleric and Attila. There is no cure for it. Churchill summed it up recently when he said, 'The German is either at your feet or at your throat.' If the Germans cannot be kept permanently at our feet, they must be eliminated. Our enemy is the German, not particularly the Nazi. Let us not forget it when victory is won."

People Have Legal Right to Change Unpopular Names

If one's name has a foreign sound many Canadians for the tongue to handle expertly, or if it doesn't, add up to a bit of luck, it can be changed quite legally, officials of the Vital Statistics Department point out.

But only a British subject, and this must be proved to the satisfaction of the authorities, who has been domiciled for a year in this province, and is twenty-one years of age, may experiment with names. An act of the Legislature of December 6, 1940, provides a recognized legal channel for those who have tired of the names their parents blessed them with, director of vital statistics, J. D. B. Scott, states.

"What's in a name?" Shakespeare has asked, but 430 British Columbians, who have changed their names since the act came into force do not agree with him.

The law does not require the applicant to give any reason for the change of name, but most people frankly state their reasons. The most frequent is that they wish to simplify names such as have appeared on the front pages of our newspapers for the past few years. Three names, doomed to be forgotten because they cannot be pronounced nor remembered.

NUMEROLOGY AFFECTS CHANGES.

The next group who seek name changes are those who have discovered that the mystic number allotted their name by the numerologists is a dark and foreboding one; if they change their name in accordance with numerology and so acquire a good-luck number such as nine or three, they believe they will get the breaks—in rhythm with the universe. There are quite a few in this group, though officials cannot estimate the exact number.

A few who apply for a change are twenty-one-year-olds who wish to take the name of their father, who had not taken out adoption papers. Legally adopted children automatically take the name of the new parents.

More men than women seek to change their names, and most of them are young, officials say. The older generations prefer to keep the names that ancestors and church registers bestowed on them.

Before the act of 1940 there was no law which made it compulsory to take legal steps, nor did the law prevent a man from adopting a name, even though another person was already known by that name.

The matter was, to say the least, confusing.

The common practice, not that changing one's name was common, had been to execute and file a deed poll in the Provincial Secretary's office, or by Royal Licence, or the official Act of the Legislature.

INDISCRIMINATE CHANGING DANGEROUS

With the war it became dangerous to allow names to be changed indiscriminately. One man changed his name four times in one year, refused to give up any of the several certificates. The law finally caught up with him, and "now he is only a number."

Alfons had only to move to another city, choose a new British name, and go safely about their business; even though it were "spurious." The new legislation is thus an important war measure.

LITTLE RESEMBLANCE. Some correspondents with the Fifth Army in Italy, with more imagination than accuracy, have been comparing the Salerno battle with Gallipoli. Actually, except that in each case men had to land from boats on hostile beaches, something that faces our troops with every fresh attack on the European front, there is little resemblance between the present struggle in Italy and the ill-fated Gallipoli expedition. The purpose is different, the physical situation unlike, the means at hand in great contrast, and the result certain to be completely opposite.

But the association of ideas has affected some of their dispatches

Says C.C.F. Must Accept All Labor

Speaking Friday night at 1416 Douglas Street, Tom McEwen, provincial organizer of the Labor Progressive Party, deplored the unwillingness of the C.C.F. to accept the proffered assistance of his party.

McEwen declared untrue the charge that Canadian Communists believe in force and violence and are loyal to Russia but not to Canada, which, the speaker said, was the "sheerest humbug."

Renewing the labor body's assurances of co-operation whenever it may be acceptable, McEwen said: "The door is still open for unity with the C.C.F. and the logic and lessons of history will keep it open, because the interests of the Canadian people are greater and more vital than the interests of any political party."

McEwen praised the Canadian war effort, but said that it was far short of Canada's "potential maximum," and would remain so until Ottawa "evolves a genuine labor and farm policy that will make the industrial and farm workers of Canada partners in the war effort."

Predicting an early Dominion election, McEwen cited the forthcoming national conference of the Liberal Party, which soon would be working on a programme "calculated to smother the indignation of the Canadian people at Liberal prostration and inaction."

Bulb Sale for Red Cross Next Week

With the overseas bulb market still cut off, the importance of Gordon Head bulbs is now greater than ever, and friends of the Red Cross will have a rare opportunity of acquiring some at the interesting display being arranged in the Gordon Head Community Hall for Saturday and Sunday, September 25 and 26, from 2 to 5:30 p.m. Last year many hundreds of bulbs were sold and an even better response is hoped for this year.

The event is still a week off, but gardeners will want to plan their purchases. Dozens of varieties will be on sale, priced from a few cents to $1 each for the finer varieties. Shrubs, fancy aprons and home cooking will also be on sale, the committee announced.

Evasive Action Not so Gentle

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WITH THE R.C.A.P. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 18 (CP)—Anybody who has not undergone evasive action while sitting in the rear turret of a Wellington bomber will not appreciate quite how fit Sgt. Dick Boyer felt on this trip over Germany. But if you've ever been in the last coach of the roller coaster when it left the rails, went three times around the hot dog stand, hedge-hopped the ferris wheel and took a turn around the dodgem before returning to the tracks, you have a slight idea how it seemed to fit Sgt. Boyer.

As a rear gunner, this was his first "op" and he was not so very happy. He did not mind the flak. He could put up with the searchlights, too. But why did the pilot toss his Wimpy all over the sky?

A few minutes later (so he says) he not only felt unhappy but he did not feel so good and he opened the escape hatch to get a breath of air, among other things. Before he knew it, tracers were booming up at him and a Junkers 88, 750 yards away, was coming up fast, firing everything he had.

"I forgot all about being unhappy and a trifle air sick," said Boyer, "and started fighting. I got in three good bursts. Sgt. Moe Coulson, of Montreal, in the front turret, was blasting away, too, and the Junkers, dived down and disappeared."

The boys were credited with a probable.

Sgt. Air Gunner H. W. Nixon, of Toronto, just graduated from an R.A.F. O.T.U., had been trying to get in touch with his brother, Tony, of the Canadian army, for months. One morning he woke up to find Tony in the next bed at the barracks. It turned out that Tony had got stranded while on leave and came to the station to spend the night.

Fit. Lieut. J. H. Conner, of Dauphin, Man., is a flying adjutant. He takes a hop every time he can possibly get away from his desk with the Thunderbolt Squadron and has made it his business to learn as much as possible about air operations. He recently accompanied airmen on mock bombing exercises over London.

One of the happiest of the many thousands of young women serving in the R.C.A.F. is L.A.W. Vivian Nixon, of Brampton, Ont. She is a motor transport driver in the Canadian Bomber Group and, by her own admission, finds the change from civilian to service life thoroughly enjoyable.

"I'm getting a wonderful opportunity to see England and am afraid it's going to be difficult to settle down in a routine job after the war," she said.

Army officers are flying with bombers on day and night missions now to study at first hand the enemy's anti-aircraft fire.

Sgt. Pilot Thomas Hammett, Jr., has been with the R.C.A.F. for two years. He graduated as a pilot nine months ago and is now training at air observers school in Quebec. He is twenty-four years of age. L.A.C. Leslie Alexander Hammett, twenty-one years of age, serves in the R.C.A.F. Marine Section, Victoria.

Veteran Lawyer Eighty on Sunday

STUART HENDERSON

Stuart Henderson, who has had one of the busiest and most romantic careers of any lawyer in British Columbia courts, will observe his eightieth birthday anniversary on Sunday by looking forward to many more years of defending clients.

His work keeps him busy from 7:30 a.m. to late at night, and he is a familiar figure in the courtrooms of Victoria. Despite his years, he constantly keeps abreast of trends in his profession, and thrives on a good trial.

Mr. Henderson will fight for a client in any court, but has often remarked that he feels his best when conducting an important trial before a jury. Some of his ablest defences have been made successful through curious technicalities.

Born in Scotland, he came to Canada as a boy of nine, and began his practice of law in British Columbia in 1897, at Ashcroft. He has conducted the defence in almost fifty murder trials, and only five of those charged were hanged.

Two U.S. Warships Lost at Salerno

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—The landing of the Fifth Army at Salerno cost at least two United States warships.

The 1,600-ton destroyer Rowan went down as the result of an "underwater explosion" off the Italian coast Saturday, two days after the Salerno beachhead was established, a navy communiqué disclosed last night.

Enemy action caused the sinking of the 1,450-ton tug Naugatuck in the same area.

The communiqué also announced the loss of the U.S.S. Navajo, sister ship of the Naugatuck, from an underwater explosion in the South Pacific Sunday.

The sinkings brought to 117 the number of United States fighting craft lost since the war started.

BEARS DELAY TRAINS

MONTREAL, Sept. 18 (CP)—Bears have delayed trans-continental trains of the Canadian Pacific Railway twice within the last week, Canadian Pacific Railway officials said here. In each case the bear came off second best in the collisions but the trains failed to escape without damage.

Pr. Rupert Halibut Landings Totaled

PRINCE RUPERT, Sept. 18 (CP)—Halibut landings at the port of Prince Rupert up to and including September 17 reached a total of 16,719,000 pounds for the 1943 season, compared with 15,970,219 pounds at a corresponding date last year.

It is believed this would be the final grand total figure for the present year as only three boats remained to be accounted for following the closing of fishing on September 8 and it is thought these vessels had gone or were going to other ports.

The grand total for the present year consisted of 12,722,000 pounds of American fish as compared with 11,890,500 pounds in 1942, while the Canadian total for 1943 was 4,057,000 pounds as against 3,989,919 pounds last year. The three boats still unaccounted for at Prince Rupert were the Canadian vessels White Hope, Capt. Peter Thompson, and Laredo, Capt. Chris Jensen, and the American, Capt. Chris Jensen, and the American, Capt. Chris Jensen.

A.R.P. Activities

District 8, James Bay—On Wednesday next at 8 p.m. at the Red Cross Hall, Michigan Street, the special committee, consisting of senior wardens, patrol leaders, etc., will report on applications of new wardens.

District 6—All wardens of District 6 are asked to attend a general meeting at the Duchess Street first-aid point on Tuesday evening, September 21, at 8 p.m. for the purpose of discussing future activities. Wardens who attended the Spring first-aid class at this point are asked to attend to receive their certificates.

Two Albertans Win Decorations

EDMONTON, Sept. 18 (CP)—Award of the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Medal to two Albertans for action in the Sicilian campaign is reported in letters received by friends here. Information contained in a letter received by Dr. H. R. MacLean, prominent Edmonton dentist, from a friend who served with the Canadian First Division during the campaign, reported that Lt.-Col. James Curry Jefferson, thirty-seven-year-old Edmonton officer, had been awarded the D.S.O.

Another letter, received by David Smith, of Edmonton, from his son, Pte. W. D. (Billy) Smith, an original member of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, reported the Military Medal had been awarded to Cpl. Robert Ellenwood, of Red Deer, Alta., also a member of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

The awards brought to five the number of Canadians known so far to have received decorations for action in the Sicilian campaign. Besides Lt.-Col. Jefferson, the D.S.O. has been awarded to Brig. Christopher Vokes, of Winnipeg and Ottawa, and Brig. Harold Graham, of Trenton, Ont. Lieut. Rex Carey, of Victoria, is reported to have received the Military Cross.

PICTURES TAKEN TO CELEBRATE

Lt.-Col. Jefferson's wife said here today she had received a letter from her husband last Saturday in which he told of having his picture taken "to celebrate the awards which no doubt you know more about than I do."

Early this year the Edmonton officer, who has been in the Canadian Army nineteen years, was awarded the efficiency decoration for meritorious service. He went overseas in 1939 as a major in command of a company of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment and last January 6, his thirty-seventh birthday, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Pte. Smith said in his letter that Cpl. Ellenwood received his decoration for doggedly carrying on with his work of maintaining contact with the main body of his unit from an isolated advanced post after an enemy sniper's bullet had wounded him in the left hand.

Living in Edmonton at the outbreak of war, he enlisted with the

British Columbia Girl Wins Broadway Fame

MISS ROSEMARY SANKEY

DAUGHTER OF Mr. and Mrs. P. A. O. Sankey, and grand-daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Tustial, Vancouver, is leaving on Monday for New York. Miss Sankey recently returned to Vancouver for a short holiday after an absence of four years, during which time she has appeared in the East in several successful Broadway shows. As a John Powers model Rosemary has become internationally known, and is a familiar figure on the covers and in the advertisements of the leading fashion magazines. Her anticipated holiday this summer was aborted due to her desire to bring to the men of the services in this country some of the experience she has gained in the United States under the auspices of the U.S.O. Rosemary gladly accepted the invitation of the Entertainment National Service tending naval stores officer, Pacific Coast.

Guests registering at the Empress Hotel on Saturday included Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Day, Sask., Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Diamond, Vancouver, R. E. Douglas, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Funk, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Weddings

BOVIN-JACKSON

Victoria will be the home in the immediate future of a Winnipeg bride and groom, whose marriage was quietly solemnized by Ven. Archdeacon Nunn in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, September 18. The bride, Shirley Louise, is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson, Winnipeg, and the bridegroom, Lieut. William Eric Bovin, Winnipeg Light Infantry, is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Anne I. Bovin, Gladiol and chrysanthemums, in Autumn hues, were arranged in the church, and the organist was in attendance. Given in marriage by an old family friend, Captain J. B. Acland, the bride was attractive in an afternoon frock of robin egg blue light wool with brown accessories and a corsage bouquet of gardenias, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, white carnations and swainsona. A frock of pink light wool with fuchsia accents and black accessories was chosen by the matron of honor, Mrs. S. A. Mooney, Winnipeg, who carried a Colonial bouquet of Tallinn roses and loring gladioli, and the bridesmaid, Miss Kyrie Mackenzie, Victoria, was in powder blue wool with navy and white accessories and a Colonial polka of pink asters and roses. Captain James Lightfoot, W.L.I., was groomsmen. Fellow officers of the groom formed a guard of honor as the couple left the church for the reception, held in the officers' mess at the Willows Camp, where Mrs. James Jackson welcomed the guests after the bride and groom had been honored. The bride sat at the head of the table with her husband's parents, Lieut. and Mrs. Bovin left by plane for their honeymoon on September 1 at St. John's, Newfoundland. The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Chandler, St. John's, and the bride is the only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Large, Shanghai, and sister-in-law of Mrs. Clifford Large, Shanghai, formerly Miss Catherine Fraser, eldest daughter of Mrs. J. S. C. Fraser, Victoria and Vancouver, and the late Mr. Fraser. Mr. and Mrs. Chandler have a host of friends in Victoria and Vancouver, former residents of China, who will be interested in the wedding. After arriving in England, Mr. Chandler joined the Royal Navy, and Miss Large became a member of the W.R.N.S. included C. I. Taylor, Mrs. T. Beckett, Mrs. D. T. Kennedy.

Miss Pat Taylor, R.N., who is to be married shortly, was guest of honor at a tea given by Miss Dorothy Van, R.N., at the Empress Hotel on Saturday afternoon, when the invited guests were Mrs. A. C. Taylor (Kamloops), Mrs. J. McKenzie, Mrs. D. E. Alcorn, Mrs. E. V. Davies, Misses Margaret Strachan, Marjorie MacLennan, Pamela Bennett, Helen Pedon and Nursing Sister Helen McPherson.

The following recruits enlisted recently in the Canadian Women's Army Corps, and are attached to No. 111 Depot Company, Vancouver, B.C.: Ptes. Jessie Perry, Emma L. Kerbis, Victoria; Evelyn I. Harris, Norma I. Roy, Barbara J. Thom, Doris A. Tynjala, Margaret F. Mitchell, Margaret E. Lyle, Ruth M. Wilkey, Edna C. Smith, M. Kelly, Doreen M. Crich, Sherry M. Kelly, Revelstoke; Violet M. Marshall, West Vancouver; Elva M. Chester, Steveston; Lillian R. Gibson, New Westminster; Ella Rust, Chilliwack; Hazel I. Pease, Vancouver, B.C.; Mildred P. Sheridan, Elko Lake, B.C. and Betty R. McKean, Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yule will, on Wednesday, September 22, celebrate their golden wedding day at their residence, 1312 Gloucester Avenue. It was at a home wedding in Ottawa that Miss Sarah Stearns, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stearns, formerly of Wakefield, became the bride of Mr. Charles Yule, who left his home in Perth, Scotland, in 1836. For nine years Mr. Yule made his home in Ottawa, and nine more years in

CURTIN-CHRISTENSEN
A quiet wedding was solemnized

at 1 o'clock in the rectory of St. Andrew's Cathedral, by Rev. Father W. O'Brien, in the presence of members of the family and intimate friends, between Elaine Alma Christensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Christensen, and Francis John Curtin, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Curtin, of Govan, Sask. The bride chose a tulle of shimmering blue silk gabardine, the slightly fitted jacket opening over a blouse of white crepe. Her hat of blue was finished with a band of pink tulle French flowers. Her corsage bouquet was of sweetheart roses and bouvardia. Mrs. Donald King was bridesmaid, wearing a beige tailored suit with mass green accessories. Mr. Donald King was

PEARS-GILES

Of interest to his many friends in Victoria is the news of the marriage which took place on August 14, at St. George's Church, Halifax, between Stoker P.O. Ken Eugene Pears, R.C.N., and Miss Pearl Gertrude Giles, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Giles, Halifax. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. F. C. Giles. The bride looked charming in a white sheer floor-length gown, white veil and Sweetheart headress with orange blossom, and carried a shower bouquet of red and white carnations and roses. The bride's attendants were Miss Theresa Freer, dressed in blue sheer and matching hat and corsage bouquet of carnations and roses. The flower girl, Doreen Brown, wore a pink sheer dress, Sweetheart headress and carried a basket of carnations, roses and pansies. The groomsmen were Petty Officer Hugh Ashcroft, R.C.N. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, attended by a large number of friends and relatives. For traveling the bride wore a brown pencil striped tailored suit and brown accessories. The honeymoon was spent on a tour of Nova Scotia, and on their return they will make their home at 147 Duncan Street, Halifax. Stoker P.O. Pears will be remembered as a small boy wrestling under the name of Young Des Anderson.

C.C.F. ORGANIZER HERE

A. M. Nicholson, M.P., national organizer of the C.C.F., accompanied by Mrs. Nicholson, recently visited the Victoria C.C.F. Club, and spoke on organization in Quebec and the Maritimes. He urged an old-age pension scheme similar to that in New Zealand. Mrs. P. Raymet, acted as chairman of the meeting.

V.O.N. Raises Sum of $350 at Rummage Sale

Under the convener'ship of Mrs. Peter Barr the V.O.N. rummage sale, an annual event in Victoria, was held at 781 Fort Street on Saturday afternoon. Approximately $350 was realized for the fund. Although this amount was smaller than in former years the committee was very pleased and gratified in view of the times, and the constant appeal to the public by various relief organizations.

Conveners of stalls did a brisk business and were sold out by 2 o'clock. Members of the Victorian Order and their friends assisted in serving the numerous customers. In charge of the various stalls were: Home furnishings, Mrs. Russell B. Burton, president of the V.O.N. board, underwear, Mrs. Allan Wylie; hats, Mrs. E. W. Book; children's wear, Mrs. G. B. Williams; miscellaneous, Mrs. J. Murray Cameron; books, Mrs. F. W. Midgley; kitchenware, Mrs. E. Mallek; men's clothing, Mrs. Willis; women's clothing, Mrs. A. Strath; window stalks, Mrs. R. Henderow and Miss Cynthia Yarrow.

Under the convener'ship of Mrs. Stanley Haynes, the Junior Auxiliary to the V.O.N. was in charge of the shoe sale. Mrs. N. Sheffield and Mrs. H. Wilson acted as treasurers for the day.

CENTRAL BAPTIST Y.P.S.

The semi-annual elections of the Central Baptist Y.P.S. were held on Friday at a meeting opened with prayer by P.O. Nelson Beckner, R.C.N.V.R. Reports from the secretary and treasurer were then read before Dr. Rowell, the pastor, took over the meeting for the elections. Those elected to office were: President, John Richards (by acclamation); vice-president, Jim Reel; secretary, Frances Rowell; corresponding secretary, Joyce Richards; treasurer, Grace Rowell; missionary treasurer, Florence Cromwell; pianist, Phyllis Hick and Joan Frewing; song leaders, Sgt. Reg Huxley and Albert McCarty, and a book of committee comprised of seven. During the counting of ballots, special notes were given, including vocal solos by Joyce Richards, May Veale and Bill Nelson, a poem by Jim Reel, piano solo by Phyllis Hick, and a short talk by Nelson Beckner, before he leaves Victoria for duty elsewhere. Dr. Rowell dismissed the meeting with prayer.

ADVICE ON DRESS
LONDON (CP) — The Board of Trade and the Ministry of Information have issued a booklet, costing six cents, in which dress experts give hints on how British, and other, clothes compete and be well dressed. The book is entitled "Make Do and Mend."

Normal School Students Start Fall Activities

The activity programme for the Fall term opened at the Victoria Normal School on Friday afternoon when a mock radio broadcast was held under the direction of officials of the Literary Society. The main feature was an inter-class quiz, the winners being Miss Ruth Macdougall, Miss Catherine Shaw and Miss Lois Dickinson, contestants from Class "B". Class "B" will be presented with the shield to be awarded each week to the class obtaining the most points at literary meetings. Miss Joan Keough, Miss Shirley Lunn and Miss Margaret Oley, Miss Lillian Hutchinson, Miss Margaret Kerr and John Jackson represented the losing classes.

The musical portion of the programme included violin selections by Miss Doreen Murgford and a piano solo, "Polonaise in C Sharp Minor" (Chopin), by Miss Frances Rigby.

Miss Lydia Martin and Ed Eberlein were station announcers while Miss Florence Wilson and Max Turky reviewed news of the week. Student elections were held earlier in the week with Miss Margaret Oley (Natal), Miss Phyllis Wilkison (Nanaimo) and Miss Isabelle Wilkison (Ladysmith) being elected to the executive of the Athletic Society. Class "A" chose Miss Joyce Bailey, Victoria, as class representative to the Literary Society, while Miss Anne Aitken, Cobble Hill, and Miss Lydia Martin, Victoria, will represent Class "B" and Class "C". Miss Ruth "Parquet" Victoria; Miss Eleanor Simpson, Nelson, and Evely Jones, Victoria, were sent as classroom delegates to the Drama and Debating Society.

On Thursday afternoon the prospective teachers had their first demonstration lesson when they proceeded to St. James Douglas School to watch a primary class in session.

The Athletic Society, headed by President Max Turky, also met during the week to draw up a sports time table. It is expected that badminton, basketball, table tennis and bowling will be commenced shortly, while swimming and softball will be introduced later in the school year.

The speaker will be Mrs. Dorothy Abraham, commissioner for the West district, who has been a Guide for twenty years. She will speak with authority on the Guide movement which has done so much for thousands of children the world over and which she feels is so vital to the youth of today.

On Friday, October 1, a special showing for all Brownie Packs will be given at the Y.W.C.A. at 4 o'clock.

Honors for Brides-Elect

Honoring Miss Jean Findlay, an October bride-elect, Mrs. Waldo W. Skillings and Mrs. Kyrie W. Symons were hostesses on Friday evening at a miscellaneous shower held at Mrs. Skillings' home, 1721 Rockland Avenue. The honoree received a corsage bouquet of Talsman roses upon her arrival and found her many pretty and practical gifts concealed in a cleverly constructed "battleship." Mrs. J. N. Findlay and Miss Mary McPadden presided when a buffet supper was served at the close of the evening. The table was centred with mauve and white asters in a deposit-wash bowl and lighted by white tapers in matching holders. Late Summer flowers looked attractive throughout the house. The invited guests were Mrs. J. N. Findlay, Mrs. George McCullough, Mrs. S. M. McPadden, Mrs. Frank Gooch, Mrs. C. E. Blaney, Jr., Mrs. E. J. Harris, Mrs. M. Hovenden (Westfield, N.J.), Mrs. Gawn McCullough, Mrs. A. West, Mrs. T. Bowden, Mrs. William Findlay, Mrs. R. Angus, Mrs. H. B. Nash, Mrs. J. Eastick, Mrs. F. Manning, Mrs. A. McKellar, Mrs. J. Goddard, Mrs. E. Mallick, Mrs. Slew, Mrs. J. N. Findlay, Mrs. E. Cross and Misses Mary McPadden, Betty Seattle, Margaret Carrell, Kay Sheret, Patricia Strachan, B. Harris, Florence Oates, and Audrey Barnett.

Miss Patricia Healey, a bride-elect of this month, was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower held on Friday evening when the Misses Dorothy Adams and Margaret Scott were joint hostesses at the home of the latter, Sea View Road. A corsage bouquet of pink carnations was presented to the honoree and her mother, Mrs. E. Tull, received pink wax peas. The many lovely gifts were arranged in an attractively decorated "wishing well." Games were played and much enjoyed, the winners being Mrs. J. Duncan and Mrs. A. de Castro. The supper table was centred with a low silver bowl of Baby Royal dahlias flanked by pink candles. Mrs. de Castro and Mrs. Duncan presided. The guests were Miss Violet Page, who is to be the bridesmaid, Misses Rowena Ashby, Joy Turnbull, Janet Dobbs, Virginia de Castro, Mildred Duncan, Olive Parkinson, and Mrs. E. Tull, Mrs. R. H. Adams, Mrs. Douglas Scott, Mrs. E. M. Parkinson, Mrs. M. Sargent, Mrs. A. de Castro, and Mrs. James Duncan.

Little Stories for Bedtime

By THORNTON W. BURROWS

TWO FUNNY PROCESSIONS

Sammy Jay was busily spreading the news of Peter's sickness. On the edge of the Green Forest he met Happy Jack Squirrel and told him. Happy Jack at once hunted up his cousin, Chatterer and Red Squirrel and Striped Chipmunk, and told them. They put their heads together to try to think of something they could do for Peter. Then each hurried to his private storehouse and stuffed his cheeks with nuts left over from the winter and the three raced down the Crooked Little Path toward the dear Old Brier Patch and so presently caught up with Jimmy Skunk and Johnny Chuck and Danny Meadow Mouse.

Tommy Tit the Chickadee had overheard Sammy Jay telling Happy Jack Squirrel and at once spread the news among all the other birds in the Old Orchard. Half way to the Smiling Pool Sammy met his cousin, Blacky the Crow, and told him. Blacky listened with his head on one side. Then without a word he flew over to Farmer Brown's cornfield and pulled up some tender young corn and with this started straight for the dear Old Brier Patch. At the Smiling Pool, Sammy told Jerry Muskrat and Grandfather Frog and Spotty the Turtle and Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter. And so before the middle of the afternoon the news of Peter's sickness had spread all through the Green Forest, around the Smiling Pool, over the Green Meadows and through the Old Orchard, and it seemed as if everyone who heard it wanted to do something for Peter Rabbit.

Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter went fishing just as soon as they heard the news. Neither told the other what he was going to do and each looked very much surprised when he discovered the other just starting out across the Green Meadows with a fish in his mouth.

"Where are you going?" demanded Billy Mink.

"I don't know that it is any of your business," replied Little Joe Otter with a scornful look. "I'm going to see how Peter Rabbit is and take him a fish. Where are you going?"

It was Billy Mink's turn to look a little sheepish. "I'm going to the same place," he confessed. "Let's go together."

"Wait a minute," said a voice right behind them. "I guess you fellows aren't the only ones who can take something to Peter Rabbit."

Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter turned. There was Jerry Muskrat just climbing out of the Smiling Pool and in his mouth was a tender young fish, the very tenderest he had been able to find at the bottom of the Smiling Pool. "We may as well all go together," added Jerry. Behind Jerry came Spotty the Turtle.

and when the retreat will halt. The highlight in the Russian military picture was a rapid advance of those Soviet columns nearest to the Dnieper, a long and wide river behind which the Germans may elect to stand. By capturing Pavlograd, these units reached the approaches of the river bend which juts eastward in Southern Russia.

Advances of up to six miles were made on an assault front stretching more than 100 miles north and south of the once great Dnieperpetrovsk power centre. Its $110,000,000 dam was blown up by the Russians themselves on August 28, 1941, in a spectacular demonstration of their scorched earth retreat.

To capture Pavlograd, the Russians were forced to fight through rain-mired approaches and German reports said the autumn drenching had been interfering with their own defensive fighting.

Solomons Raid

100 American bombers poured explosives on airfields in the area from 9 a.m. until early afternoon, while scouting fighters battled it out with 100 interceptors.

"The enemy is reinforcing his air forces in this area," Saturday's communiqué said.

Previously dispatches from the Solomons area said the Japanese may be ferrying planes from Japan down through Truk and Rabaul, New Britain, to Bougainville bases. Bougainville in the Northern Solomons is the last air fortress barring American forces now entrenched on New Georgia and Vella Lavella from the enemy's all-important naval and air base of Rabaul.

The peninsula of Aden was first occupied by the British in 1839.

Standley Will Return to U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP).—In a step possibly preliminary to a three-power conference of high American, British and Soviet representatives, Admiral William H. Standley, United States Ambassador to Moscow, is coming home to make a personal report to Secretary of State Hull and President Roosevelt. His imminent return was made known today by the State Department which said it was for consultation in connection with discussions being carried on with the British and Soviet Governments. Department spokesmen were non-committal when asked whether Standley would go back to Moscow after his consultations here are completed. But in view of persistent reports that he might be replaced and the fact that he has been quoted more than once as wishing to avoid another winter in Russia, it was considered here that his return to Moscow is problematical at best.

Family Pay

comes of low-wage families without drastic wage boosts, which would create inflation and threaten the whole economic programme of the Federal authorities. It is also regarded in Government circles as a measure of social security, to be fitted into whatever general programme may be developed along that line.

Family allowances were suggested in the Marsh report in Canada and Beveridge report in Britain. At $9 a month, it is estimated the cost would run about $180,000,000 a year, but by paying this sum out of Federal revenue, instead of higher wages, it would not be added directly to the cost of goods, services or commodities. This would avert higher costs, which must inevitably break the prices ceiling wide open and almost certainly start a serious inflationary spiral—the one thing the Government has been trying to prevent.

It is likely that, if the allowance is decided upon, the present income tax exemption for children, which approximates $9 a month, would be dropped. The net effect would be to give low-income families the benefit. The allowances would be paid to families in all income groups, but income tax payers would not gain in the final analysis because of the cancellation of the present exemption for children.

AGE LIMITS FOR EXEMPTION SET

It is understood that tentative plans call for payment of the allowance for dependent children up to seventeen, or up to twenty-one if attending school, college or university, and for children above seventeen dependent because of physical or mental infirmity. This would enable the authorities to tie the plan in with present income tax provisions.

The alternative would be, apparently, removal of wage increase restrictions for workers receiving less than fifty cents an hour or $25 a week. This move, it is believed here, would menace the anti-inflation programme of the Government.

The Cabinet is said to be agreed that it is impossible for a person to live decently today on less than $25 a week, permitting wide-open bargaining for increased pay under this level would precipitate determined efforts by higher-paid workers to maintain the wage differential. The pressure for bigger wages, even in higher levels, is already great. It is not thought the Government would make any move which would increase it.

All indications are that the Government has made up its mind to back the Halsey-Gordon anti-inflation policy as in the past. The report of the National Labor Board for a revised wage and labor policy is being considered within the limits of the anti-inflation programme, which involves definite controls of prices and wages. This will probably have to be modified, but it appears that its main features will be maintained. This is contrary to recent rumors that the Government was going to retreat from its wages and prices control programme and take a chance on a considerable degree of inflation.

Most listeners here who had heard Mussolini speak before said they believed the voice was actually that of the fallen Italian Premier, whom the Germans have announced as the head of the Nazi-sponsored "Republican Fascist Party."

SOME BELIEVE IT A RECORDING

The opinion of the United States Government radio monitors was eight to two that it was Mussolini's voice, though somewhat subdued from his old balcony days in Rome and some thought it was a recording.

Though the speech was generally regarded in London as one of "a man whose prestige is gone for good," listeners agreed that the speaker sounded much like the blustering Duce of old when he enunciated his four-point programme.

This programme was offered to restore an Italy which the speaker said had yielded to the "hardest armistice terms known in history" and now was "thrown into a state of chaos and despair—all its possessions thrown away with the stroke of a hand."

For fielding to these terms, the broadcast said, King Vittorio Emanuele should be immediately "called to account."

"I am convinced," the speaker said, "that the House of Savoy is paraded and carried out the coup, d'état together with Badoglio as accomplice, and all of the cowardly generals and... some treacherous members of the Fascist party."

WAS TO HAVE BEEN "HANDLED OVER TO ENEMY"

The broadcast thus described Mussolini's fall on July 24.

"It had happened before in war and peace that a minister had to resign, that a general was killed. It had, however, never been learned that a man who had served his king absolutely loyally for more than twenty years was arrested on the steps of the King's private house, was forced to enter a Red Cross car, under the pretext of

At the war's outset Hitler had high hopes of redressing the balance of resources, favoring the Allies by cutting off supplies to Britain with U-boat warfare, and at the same time replenishing Germany's stocks from captured Soviet territory and from the Far East by blockade runners.

These efforts failed. Now the United Nations are carrying the attack heavily and ruthlessly into the Ruhr, sensitive economic heart of Germany. Similarly, heavy fighting on any front involves an enormous consumption of material which the German High Command must endeavor to replace from depleted reserves.

Every Allied move is aimed—on the long run—at Germany's economy. The blockade is a long-term operation; the assault on the Ruhr is a medium term; precision bombing of selected targets is short term and front line fighting is immediate.

Capture of North Africa closed a blockade leak. Germany was denied much needed natural phosphate, small quantities of iron ore, wheat, barley, oil seeds and wine, which she had been getting from Africa. But despite this penetration the blockade over a long period, had created shortages of oil, rubber, ferro alloys, copper and textiles.

Within a period of six months, Germany was deprived in this way of 30,000 tons of raw rubber, representing approximately one-sixth of annual requirements, and 5,000 tons of tin. Smaller quantities of tungsten also were lost. Substitutes have failed to take up the slack.

The entire German economic and military structure depends on manpower. Reports reaching London say the manpower shortage has become acute, despite employment of millions of people in occupied countries.

Whosaid "NO CAKE?" You can make wartime cakes that are just about as fine as cakes as you ever baked—in spite of some difficulties over ingredients like shortening or sugar or eggs. It's all a matter of the right recipes, carefully followed, with good ingredients.

The Question of Butter

You have your choice of three ways of reducing the amount of butter you use in cake-baking—or of eliminating butter entirely, if you wish.

1. Wherever the recipe calls for butter, use half butter and half some other kind of shortening.
2. Use some other shortening entirely in place of the butter called for in the recipe. This can be done with all Swans Down Cake Flour recipes.
3. Make some of the many wonderful Swans Down Cakes which call for no shortening of any kind! Here's one you can try.

Champion Sponge Cake

1 1/2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1/4 teaspoon Calumet Baking Powder
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind
4 egg yolks
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream together well. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes.

*If substituting corn syrup or honey, use 1 cup and decrease milk to 1/2 cup. Or use 1/2 cup of syrup and 1/4 cup of sugar; decrease milk to 1/2 cup and 1 tablespoon.

SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR

Some Answers to Wartime Cake Problems

What About the Sweetener?

The three usual sweeteners for cakes—sugar, corn syrup or honey—are all a bit of a problem these days. But there are Swans Down recipes that call for very little sugar—others that use part sugar and part syrup or honey—others that use all syrup or honey. Here's one fine example—a light, tempting layer cake, using only 4 tablespoonsfuls of shortening and only one egg.

One-Egg Cake

2 cups Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1 egg, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream together well. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes.

*If substituting corn syrup or honey, use 1 cup and decrease milk to 1/2 cup. Or use 1/2 cup of syrup and 1/4 cup of sugar; decrease milk to 1/2 cup and 1 tablespoon.

There are several wartime ways you can serve this cake. Spread jam between the layers. Or ice with your favorite icing if you have the sugar to spare. Or there's a sugarless recipe on the Baker's Chocolate wrapper for a luscious chocolate frosting.

For Better Cakes

Made from soft wheat grown in one particular part of Canada, Swans Down is a special cake flour that makes better baking easy. The choicest part of the wheat is selected, milled by Swans Down "Controlled Milling", then sifted again and again through silk, until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour.

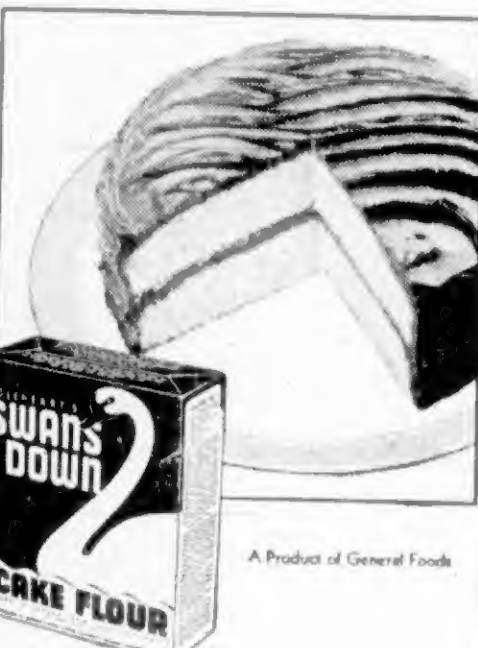

Eggs a Bit Scarce?

Many women think that it takes a lot of eggs to make a light, tender cake. But not if you use Swans Down Cake Flour. One of the special features of Swans Down is that it responds so wonderfully in quite simple recipes. You can make splendid Swans Down Cakes with only one or two eggs—even with no eggs! Try this eggless chocolate cake. Its lightness and tenderness will amaze you. But, of course, no ordinary flour could give such results.

Eggless Chocolate Cake

2 squares Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate
1 1/2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup vanilla

Combine chocolate and milk in top of double boiler and cook over rapidly boiling water 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend with rotary egg beater, cool. Sift flour once, measure, add soda, salt and sugar and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add flour mixture, vanilla, and chocolate mixture, and stir until all flour is dampened. Then beat vigorously 1 minute. Bake in two greased and lightly floured 8-inch pans in moderate oven (375°F.) 20 minutes.

wanting to rescue him from a conspiracy, and was taken from one barracks to another at great speed—and (finally) to Gran Sasso, according to a plan which provided for my being handed over to the enemy."

But in these days of darkest adversity, in the hands of monarch and conspirator turned "traitor," the speaker who represented himself as the former Italian Premier, never lost faith in one person, Adolf Hitler, who "would look after my person as a brother, more than as a comrade."

Then he told of his liberation by the parachute minions of Hitler.

American Liberators from the Middle East again joined in the aerial offensive with a daylight attack on the rail junction and freight yards at Pescara, on the east coast across from Rome.

Night-flying Wellingtons of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. continued the assault after dark, bombing airfields at Cerveteri and Furbana, north of Rome.

British troops which landed at Taranto remained comparatively inactive, meanwhile, except for the strengthening of contact with other British forces just north of the In-Step of the Italian boot. There were reports from that sector that the retreating Germans were taking Italian hostages to ensure good conduct on the part of civilians in villages held by the Nazis.

The Berlin radio asserted that German naval forces had occupied an "Italian Adriatic port of importance," seized seven steamers and numerous warships and freighters and disabled 4,000 Italian troops.

In the Naples area, the Allies are certain to encounter more and more Nazi troops as they plunge northward. The battle for Italy already is widening from a bridgehead to a full-fledged front, with hundreds of thousands of soldiers involved.

The size of the front depends only on Hitler's determination to resist, and the speed with which the Allies can throw new divisions into the fray.

An R.A.F. announcement said the first airfield in the Salerno area to be taken over by the Allies, at Montevicino to the southwest, was covered with "burned-out tanks, overturned trucks, twisted guns and new graves."

More than forty Axis aircraft were found on the field, mostly German. The first R.A.F. Spitfire put down on the field only a few minutes after the last German machine gun commanding it was put out of action.

Baruch Says Aircraft
Situation Is CriticalBy BLAIR MOODY
Copyright, 1943, by North American Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—American production can raise the living standards of the world and control the peace "if we now establish the might of America by destroying Germany from the air," Bernard M. Baruch said today.

"But first," warned the venerable advisor of presidents, "we must establish the might of America before the world."

Mr. Baruch was sitting in his "office" in pigeon-infested Jackson Park, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, discussing what he considers the terribly urgent need for exerting every effort to turn out every war bomber possible now.

Asked about the west coast manpower shortage, which has held back production of Flying Fortresses, Liberators and reportedly the new super-bombers recently discussed by Gen. Henry H. Arnold that are counted on to do the final job of leveling the Nazi fortress, Mr. Baruch refused to comment publicly on his report on manpower. "This is understood to rap sharply both management and labor for 'peace jitters,'" and the Government "for installing no 'labor budget.'" The White House has refused to make it public.

Mr. Baruch did, however, say this: "This aircraft situation is the most crucial thing that is going on in America today. If we get the airplanes, and get them in time, we can administer from the air the coup de grace to Germany's fortress. If we can do that, it will establish the might of America before the world. It will mean that the same tremendous productive force which has been possible during the war through the real co-operation of labor, management, the farmers and civilians will be the dominant factor in controlling the peace."

"For, after the war, when that productive might of America is put to the proper use, it will control the standards of living in the world. Mass production, and the respect for American mass production engendered in other peoples by what we do now in war, can mould the future of people everywhere."

"The limiting factor in our air offensive over Germany is the number of airplanes we shall have in combat in the next few months. That depends on what we do here on the home front, especially what is done in those airplane plants in the next few weeks. Nothing could be more important."

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 18 (NANA).—The key of air superiority in the Southwest Pacific is opening its first doors—those of Lae and Salamaua—which otherwise might have needed some battering and extraordinary success of the necessary preliminaries. The attack on the Wewak airfields also shows the effects of the more extensive use of bases north of the Owen-Stanley Ranges.

Not many months ago it was a risky and dangerous job for our small supply ships to creep along the coast to our positions in the Buna-Gona area, and that a full-sized convoy should now sail straight across the Bismarck Sea virtually into the mouth of strongly-held Japanese positions is the measure of the difference in our air strength.

The use of American paratroops and airborne Australian artillery of suitable type completes the picture and shows that the technique and equipment necessary for three-dimensional warfare has been perfected here no less than in the Mediterranean area. The end is now certain in Lae and Salamaua.

It is highly probable that another move forward will be taken when this one is completed. Lord Louis Mountbatten's appointment has evoked interest and warm approval here, and while informed quarters would be surprised if he can attempt any full-blooded invasion during the coming dry season, nevertheless it is felt that the fall of Italy will enable him to take action, increasing the pressure on the greatly Japanese air force.

It is becoming plain now that the Allies are exercising the initiative that victory in one place has repercussions all around the Axis periphery. It is becoming a point of honor now with the Allied forces in the Pacific not to leave everything to be done after the defeat of Germany and there is good hope that substantial progress will be made.

SLOWING DOWN THE
AGING PROCESSES

A loving, well-intentioned son persuaded his mother to move to a home adjoining his own which would mean more quietness, less disturbance by neighbors who sought assistance or advice, and so more time for rest. It was a sad mistake. The woman, beloved by the neighborhood, found herself without the daily interests of her former life and was only happy when she visited the old neighborhood or some of her old neighbors visited her. Her "uselessness" to others left her lonely and depressed. She grew old rapidly.

It is this knowledge that is causing specialists in diseases of old people—geriatricians—to treat the patient, not the disease. Thus an elderly patient suffering with an infected sinus would get quicker healing results in a dry climate, hundreds of miles away, but the sinus is only a part of the patient's body and forms no part of the patient's personality.

In his book, "Treatment of the Patient Past Fifty," Dr. Ernst P. Bone states that the physician must always keep in mind that his first use of duty to the patient is to preserve the aging person as a useful member of society, with a normal relationship to the world about him. In his enthusiasm to treat any special ailment present, he may overlook the fact that a too drastic change in the patient's manner of living may have unfavorable mental or emotional consequences that far outweigh the benefit that may be obtained in the treatment of the special ailment.

By other words, a patient must be kept between the ailment or ail-but will feel that they are still "useful." Feeling that they are "useless" increases the rate of the aging processes.

By cutting down the mental work or responsibilities, decreasing the food intake by 25 per cent, increasing the rest periods, together with some walking outdoors daily, the rate of the aging processes should be slowed down.

Soviet Officer
Says War Can
End this Year

MOSCOW, Sept. 18 (NANA).— "The fifth year of war began for the Germans with severe reverses on the Soviet-German front, and the collapse of their plans in the East led to diverse and serious complications in their home and foreign situation," said Colonel Vladimir Solovoyev today. "It is now clear even to the sincerest Germanophile and pro-Fascist that the plight of the Nazi army is grave indeed and that there is every possibility that the war will end this year, provided effective blows are dealt from the West as well as from the East."

"Nearer and nearer approaches another 'black day' for the German army and the hour of retribution for all the villainies and crimes which the German-Fascist has perpetrated and still is perpetrating against peaceful, defenceless populations in German-occupied European territories is not far distant."

WHEN THE ARMY STRIKES FROM THE SEA!

ONE OF A SERIES OF 'ACTION PICTURES' WITH CANADA'S MECHANIZED ARMY

As the first wave of Allied invasion barges nears the enemy coast, silent men in battle dress eat hot soup from self-heating cans, then leap ashore.

On the heels of the assault force, protected by fighter pilots and fighting ships, the second wave from the sea brings heavy vehicles and light tanks.

Most difficult and dangerous of all war operations, taking enemy territory from the sea is complicated by thousands of supply problems. Not only must the army gain and hold a bridge-head, but every single item it needs to exist and fight must be brought by sea and landed under enemy fire. An endless supply of food, water, gasoline, guns, tanks, ammunition and supplies must be brought ashore. It's a matter of hard work and detail as well as superb skill and daring!

Canadian army troops, fliers and naval men are trained in Canada for "Combined Operations". And fighting men from Canada are often chosen to be first onto the beach when the army strikes from the sea!

Vehicles from Canada, too, are taking part in seaborne invasions, carrying men and supplies deep into enemy territory. Reading between the headlines, 16,000 workers at Ford of Canada take pride in the performance of battle vehicles made and tested at Windsor, Ontario.

"The speed and power and perfection of detail essential to 'Combined Operations' provide a pattern for those who support the fighting men. The pattern calls for each of us to do his individual part—without hesitation, without fail."

No Cutting Down Says Minister

HALIFAX, Sept. 18 (CP)—There will be "no cutting down" of naval establishments in Canada during wartime, Naval Minister Angus L. Macdonald told reporters today when he arrived to attend the launching of the Dominion's first home-built Tribal class destroyer, the Micmac. Mr. Macdonald had been asked whether the navy was considering the army's programme of decreasing home establishments.

Marine and Transportation

First of Size Built in Canada H.M.C.S. Micmac Launched

HALIFAX, Sept. 18.—Hull No. 12, that will proudly sail the seas under the Royal Canadian Navy's white ensign as H.M.C.S. Micmac after completion, slid gracefully down the ways at Halifax Shipyards, Limited, here today.

Mrs. Angus L. Macdonald, wife of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, says Douglas Hawthorne, of Greenock, brought to Canada for the new ship—the largest warship ever built in Canada.

As soon as she slid off the ways the keel of a sister ship was laid, and construction started on the R.C.N.'s third Canadian-built Tribal class destroyer.

The first Tribal constructed in Canada was an impressive sight. Her silver-narrow bow lifted proudly above the heads of the official party. Along the 350 feet of her length were the workmen who built her, cheering themselves hoarse in this always impressive moment for those who build ships. As she slid down and out to the waiting tugs they had a glimpse of her narrow beam—her deck is little more than thirty-five feet in width.

TRIUMPH FOR SHIPBUILDERS

Her launching was at the same time a triumph for Canadian shipbuilders and a milestone in their history. No ship except a submarine is more difficult to build. No ship requires more exacting care in the manufacture of materials or in the moulding of these into the most delicate of all surface vessels—to give the greatest strength and speed and hitting power with the lightest possible weight.

She is a triumph, too, for the men and women who work in industrial plants across the Dominion—for they devised and built for her products never before made in Canada, and the network of contracts and sub-contracts covers almost every major, and many minor Canadian cities. There is, for instance, high tensile steel to give her longitudinal strength, never before manufactured in Canada; boilers, engines, turbines, giving greater power for weight than anything ever before attempted. There are the thousand and one smaller items, from insulation to writing desks, from hose pipes to auxiliary engines.

Guiding Canada in this undertaking were a corps of artisans drawn from the shipbuilding industry of Great Britain, and the Scotch brogue of Clyde is heard often among them. They range from engineers who have worked in the factories building essential parts to the foremen who watch the work in the dark caverns of the uncompleted hull amid the hiss of welder's torches and staccato thump of riveting machines.

Under the guidance of these men Canada is developing a pool of skilled workmen, ready to carry on an industry still in its infancy in this land. They are young men, serving a swift wartime apprenticeship, but they are learning their job well. Take twenty-two-year-old Arthur Taylor, for example. "I helped lay her keel plates," he says. "I've driven rivets in her from stem to stern, from keel to deck-house. One day I drove 1,250 rivets, but the last while back the going has been tougher and I've averaged about 400 a day. I suppose it's not for me to say, but I figure I know my job and know it well. I intend to build ships after the war—if we're still building 'em!"

EXPERTS SAY CAN BE DONE

And the men who know, the experts who have come to Canada from the Clyde and other shipyards to guide us, say it can be done. "They are doing a good job,"

Italian Pilots Evaded Nazis To Surrender

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Sept. 18 (AP)—Some Italian air force pilots flying a variety of planes, mostly antiquated, managed to evade the Germans and reach Allied airfields in Sicily and North Africa, it was disclosed today.

At one Sicilian landing ground twelve airmen poured out of one bomber arriving at dusk. Scuffling broadly, they handed over their revolvers and posed for photographs. At another, a Fiat CR-42 fighter landed and a tall, young air force lieutenant who escaped from the vicinity of Milan stepped out and announced in broken English: "Signor, me very good pilot. Come fight for you."

He told of anti-German demonstrations at Milan and other parts of Northern Italy, and said many Italian pilots were eager to join the fight against the Nazis because "the Italian people feel it was Germany that first invaded Italy."

Then he proposed seriously that he swap his old fighter for a Spitfire and go to work with the R.A.F.

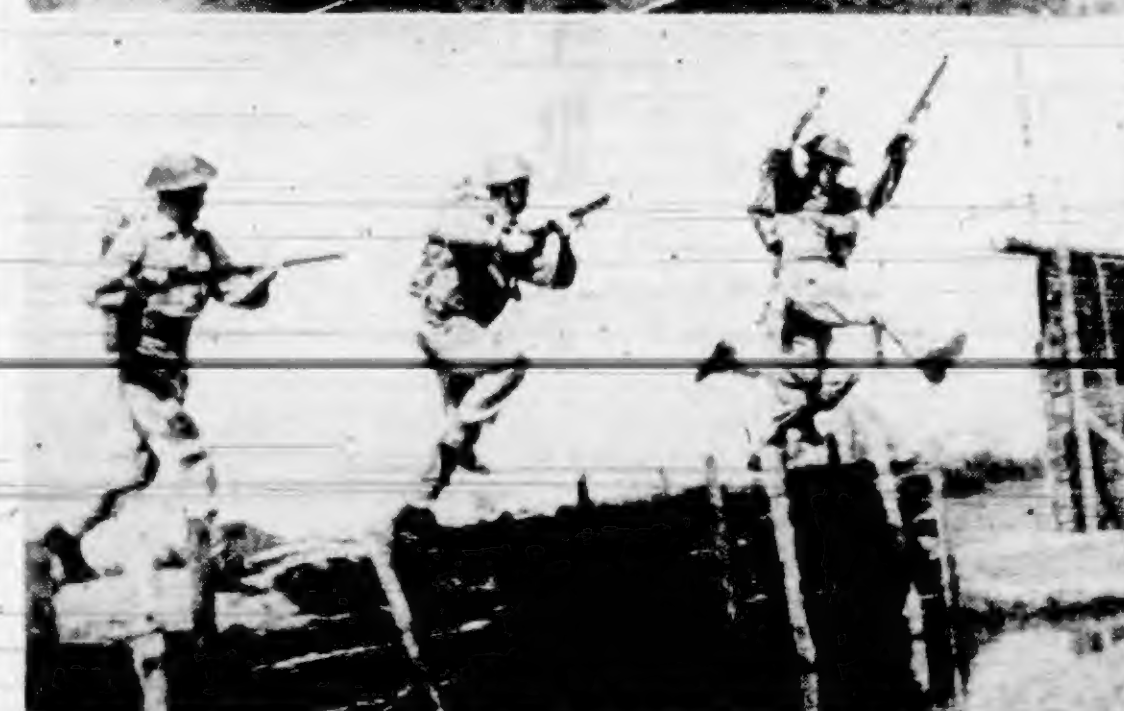

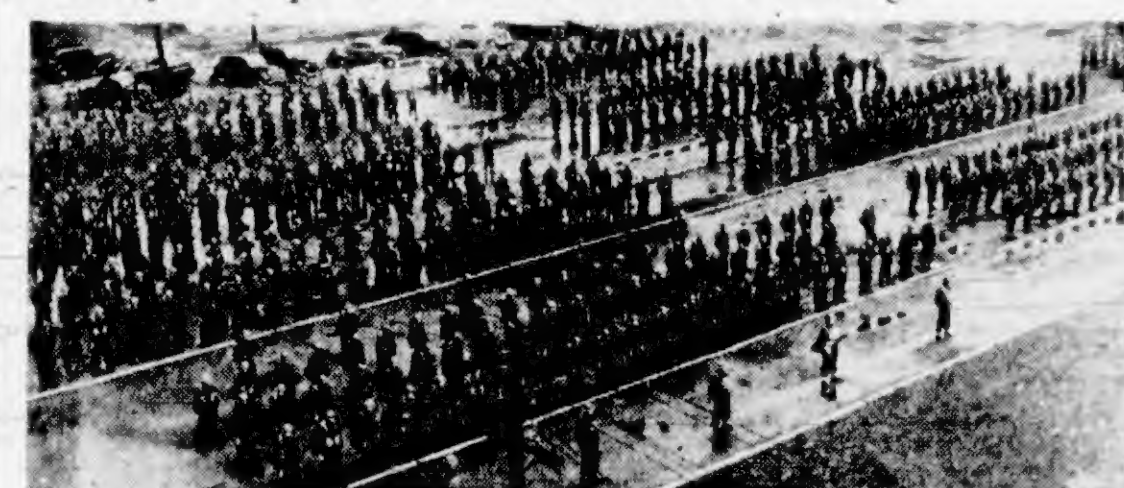

One Italian pilot-instructor from Northern Italy arrived in Sicily with a plane crammed full of his pupils.

New Report Places Canadians In Thick of Fighting in Italy

By H. M. PETERS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

German propaganda sources today hinted that Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery had sent "a Canadian division" leap-frogging by sea up the west coast of Italy to give a hand to the British-American Fifth Army battling the Germans in a rapidly widening beachhead on the Gulf of Salerno south of Naples.

This latest hint in the exciting puzzle of "where are the Canadians?" came in an Associated Press dispatch from Stockholm, where, Correspondent Edwin Shanke said, the information was given in Berlin to Swedish correspondents by a German spokesman.

All week there have been unconfirmed reports that Canadian troops and tanks have fought as a part of Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army which beat back terrific German counter-attacks, held its beaches, and now has opened an offensive against the enemy.

As elements of the British Eighth Army speeding ahead by land made contact with Gen. Clark's army, the Stockholm report said the Canadians of Salerno had embarked from Calabria Province—the toe province where Canadians of the First Division are known to have landed on September 3 when the invasion of the Italian mainland opened.

REPORT CANADIANS LAND AT SALERNO

Before the Stockholm report was received, London heard the Berlin radio report that motorized divisions of the 8th Army had landed near Salerno Wednesday night and that they included Canadians. And at almost the same time the German-controlled Vichy radio referred to "British and Canadian reinforcement troops" in the Salerno area.

London dispatches several days ago hinted that the Canadian 1st Army Tank Brigade was operating in the Salerno area. This brigade, units of which saw fighting in Sicily, is made up of the Three Rivers, Ontario and Calgary tank regiments.

Should it be borne out that the Calgary Tank Regiment is on the Salerno beaches, it would be its second experience of such a landing. The Calgarys went to Dieppe August 19, 1942, with the Canadian 2nd Division force in its day-long "reconnaissance in force" of the French beach. Now it may be involved in the second classic example in this war of a major landing on the defended European coastline by a combined operations force.

Poets are all who love, who feel great truths. And tell them, and the truth of truths is love.

GUARD against EYESTRAIN

WE are beginning to realize the long, dark evenings are on the way. . . . Even though this is only September we are turning on the lights well before eight o'clock. And with Fall and Winter ahead we shall be obliged to spend many hours in electric light—working, reading, studying, sewing and many other jobs. This is going to mean danger to our eyesight unless we make sure the lighting conditions in our homes are all they should be.

Poor light is insidious—like a fifth columnist it sneaks up on you—you do not realize the strain it imposes—how harsh, glaring light, or those bothersome shadows distract your eyes—make seeing harder.

Remember your eyes have to last a lifetime. They are priceless. And, when light comes to you so easily, we can with very little trouble have in our homes soft, glareless, well-diffused lighting.

Now is the time to check over your lighting fixtures. Get rid of wasteful, blackened and burned-out bulbs. Replace them with efficient new bulbs of the right type and size.

Ask at our Douglas Street Store for advice on lights and lighting—they'll be only too glad to help you. You'll find that your home can be kept bright and cheerful throughout the dark days with benefits to eye-health beyond estimation.

Re-Elected Head

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—Milton Murray, of The Daily Times, was re-elected without opposition president of the American Newspaper Guild in a referendum election to international executive board posts, won by all administrative candidates except one, A.N.O. announced.

George Hutchinson, of The Los Angeles Express, was elected West Coast vice president of the guild over William Schulze, of The Little Post-Intelligencer. Hutchinson ran as an independent, but had the support of the anti-administration group in the guild.

MORE NEWSPRINT

LONDON, Sept. 18 (CP). — The Government, working on the principle that a first-class news service is vital to the welfare of servicemen at home and overseas, has sanctioned a slight increase in newspaper consumption by British newspapers. The increase, which comes into effect September 1, must be used for the production of more newspapers and not for larger circulation.

Capital Closeups . . .

By GEORGE KITCHEN

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 (CP).—Three days of declining temperatures, when the coal man becomes your best friend, seem as good a time as any to draw attention to the fact that that sterling Canadian product known so aptly as "black diamonds."

This winter the Dominion faces 20 per cent shortage in coal supplies. Backed by Government regulations, the National Coal Conservation Committee is trying to meet the situation by an energetic programme that will help Canadians to make the most of the fuel available to them.

The campaign will extend into factories, homes and public buildings and will point out the advantages of such heat-saving methods as insulating and using storm windows. A study of Canadian coal consumption reveals that there is a waste equal to the 20 per cent reduction the consumers are being asked to make.

For instance, there's that old housewife's habit of running the hot water constantly while washing dishes. The conservation experts got their teeth into that one and came up with figures to prove that almost a ton and a half of coal may be wasted that way.

They say it takes something more than fifteen minutes to wash the dishes for one meal—in round figures, 363 hours a year. At least fifty-four gallons of water will be used and it takes approximately 16 pounds of coal to raise a gallon of water to 180 degrees. Multiply that and yet get 3,153 pounds of coal a year. So, the experts are asking housewives to use less hot water.

Anyway, they add with an eye to vanity, it makes your hands red.

BEER PROBLEMS

Thirty-Canadians may be interested to know how Britons deal with their beer problems. It's simple—they water the stock.

William Mabane, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Food, explained it to reporters here this week.

There is no beer rationing in Britain, but there are restrictions on production and hours of sale. Generally, there is enough to meet all demands, though a few local shortages crop up. When they do, the authorities turn on the tap.

"If you have 1,000 barrels and you need 1,200, you just add a little water," Mr. Mabane said with a smile, then going on to tell the story

"I haven't seen a drunk in years," replied the policeman, "but there

TRADE TALK

War has pushed Canada into the front line of the exporting nations of the world, though the exports nowadays vary little from such war needs as munitions and food. But the Dominion is building up a lengthy list of potential postwar customers.

Latest figures show that export trade last year was more than double that of 1939—and the rate of increase is being maintained. Total exports and imports in 1942, excluding gold, exceeded $4,000,000,000, compared with about $1,687,000,000 in 1939.

During the first seven months of this year the exports reached a total of $1,581,400,000, against $1,295,300,000 in the corresponding period of 1942, a growth of more than 22 per cent in one year. The favorable balance of trade totalled $604,000,000.

WRENS AGAIN

Wrens in Ottawa went on a church parade the other Sunday. There's nothing unusual about that, but . . . The girls had marched across the city through a light drizzle of rain, on wet, slippery pavements, and naturally were conscious of getting their feet a trifle damp. Perhaps that's why these two lines from Deuteronomy made such an impression:

"Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee,
Neither did thy foot swell, these forty years."

Queen's Canadian Fund Sends Money To People of Hull

The ever-present need for financial assistance to the people in the raid-torn areas on the east and southeast coast of England has been answered by a further donation from the Queen's Canadian Fund of $2,500 sent to the Lord Mayor of Hull.

The fund's London correspondent reports:

"Phosphorus bombs, high explosives and incendiaries were dropped by successive waves of planes during a recent sharp raid on Hull. Houses were demolished, families were trapped and rescue work was carried on for many hours. A mother with her baby was safe in a shelter when her son and daughter were killed by a bomb on their house. Two tradesmen whose property was badly damaged had already been bombed eleven times.

"One, a sixty-six-year-old butcher, said 'They'll never frighten me, I am reopening on Friday.'

"The other, his neighbor, an electrician who is also determined to keep his business going, once had a big shop which raids have gradually reduced to a wooden shack."

In this city of 280,000 people over 50 per cent of the inhabitants have been dislodged from their homes by enemy air raids. Raid casualties total over 1,000 dead and more than 2,000 injured.

"These brave people are already making plans for a new Hull, to rise on the ruins of the most battered city in England. Sir Edwin Lutyens and Professor L. P. Abercrombie, two distinguished town-planners, will be responsible for the plans.

It is hoped that Hull will have an entirely new road layout. New shopping, residential and industrial districts. A tunnel under, or a bridge over, the Humber. A big civic airport on the fringe of the city near an electric railway."

Meanwhile the people of Hull work on, facing the constant hit and run raids that leave in their wake loss of life and property damage. If Canadians could see how their dollars have helped these plucky people—ordinary little men and women who are living in such discomfort and who are sacrificing so much, their hearts would be warmed and made glad.

Cats Snarl Nazi Plans

LONDON (CP).—The Poles have kept their sense of humor in spite of German terrorism.

Take the story of the Gestapo-trained dogs, for example, told by a Polish officer who just reached London from Warsaw.

The Gestapo, he said, after trying unsuccessfully to halt the flow of smuggled food into Warsaw, from rural districts, trained vicious dogs to seek out train passengers carrying food in their luggage.

They arranged to meet a certain train and turn their dogs loose to track down those carrying food.

But someone tipped off the smugglers. So instead of pecking food

Invasion Money Finds Way Home

North American Newspaper Alliance

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. — If you get a dollar with the little Treasury seal on the right-hand side printed in yellow instead of blue, don't call the cops. It isn't a phony bill—it's an "invasion dollar."

Bills with which the overseas forces are supplied have been printed with different colored seals than those regularly circulated in this country. This, Treasury officials have explained, is so that they could be detected if any fall into enemy hands and were employed in foreign exchange.

Naturally, the boys who have been paid off abroad and who since have come home have brought some of this money with them. A certain amount of it is in circulation—just how much no responsible official wanted to guess. The total, it was said at the Federal Reserve here today, probably was not large.

When this money reaches a bank, it is taken out of circulation and sent to the Federal Reserve to be replaced by regular bills—the same procedure employed in retiring torn bills or worn-out coins. Undoubtedly, a spokesman for the Reserve Bank said, some passes through several hands before it reaches a bank to be taken out of circulation.

Financial authorities have raised questions about the right of the Treasury to issue invasion lire, francs and other foreign currencies, but this, it was explained, does not apply to the specially colored dollars. There is nothing in the law into their baskets some of them put in stray cats.

When the train reached Warsaw the Gestapo men turned their dogs loose, the Poles threw open their baskets and cats and dogs turned the station platform into a madhouse.

NEW DELHI (CP).—Wing Cmdr. S. Mohanlal, of the Indian Air Force, became the first Indian commander of an operational station with his appointment to that post.
